

Msgr. Sheridan leads diocese

Monsignor Paul Sheridan, 51, a native of Granite City, will act as interim leader for the Catholic Diocese of Springfield following the death of Bishop Joseph A. McNicholas.

He is the son of Edna Sheridan, 2301 State St., and the late Philip Sheridan. Sheridan had been serving as chancellor for the diocese and also had assisted the late Bishop William A. O'Connor.

Eleven consultants to Bishop McNicholas met in Springfield Monday to make the selection. Sheridan will hold the title of administrator until a successor to Bishop McNicholas is chosen by Pope John Paul II.

Mrs. Sheridan, his mother, said her son and the late Bishop McNicholas had been very close friends and she was pleased her son was selected to continue Bishop McNicholas' work.

Mrs. Sheridan did not know how long it would be before a permanent replacement would be chosen.

Dolores Sheridan and Mary Ellen

Becherer, two of Msgr. Sheridan's sisters of Granite City, were expected to meet with him in Springfield today.

Msgr. Sheridan also is the brother of Philip Sheridan Jr., owner of Sheridan Drug Store, and Margaret Riehaugen, both of Granite City.

The Monsignor attended St. Joseph Grade School and Granite City High School, where he was a member of the basketball team.

He graduated from St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa, and studied for the priesthood at North American College, Rome, and at Gregorian University. He was ordained in 1956 in Rome.

He served as assistant pastor at St. Matthew Church, Alton, from 1957 to 1961 in his sole parish assignment and became vice-chancellor for the Springfield Diocese in 1961.

He then continued graduate studies at Lateran University, Rome, where he received his doctorate.

The Monsignor was appointed Springfield chancellor in 1974.

Funeral services for Bishop McNicholas, who died Sunday, were scheduled for 11 this morning at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Springfield. Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago was expected to officiate. The Archbishop Edward O'Meara of Indianapolis was scheduled to give the homily.

Interment will be in a crypt underneath the cathedral sanctuary in an area reserved for bishops.

Special Masses and services were conducted for the late bishop throughout the week, including a Wednesday evening mass celebrated by Msgr. Sheridan for the religious community.

State Sen. Sam M. Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville) issued a statement from Springfield mourning the loss of the bishop, a personal friend of Vadalabene.

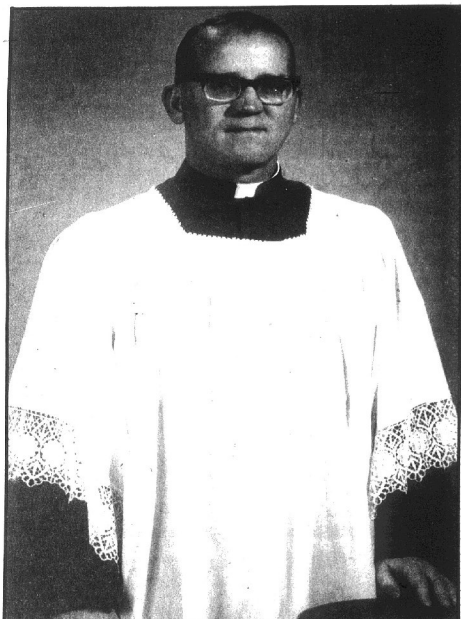

"All the citizens of the state of Illinois will miss him," Vadalabene stated. "Those of us in public life, from Govern-nor (James) Thompson, to each individual in government whose responsibility touches on moral issues and the general welfare, knew him well."

The state senator cited the bishop's courage in discussing unpopular issues. "He often told (us) things we would rather not hear, but those he served, benefited from his strength and determination."

Bishop McNicholas, a native of St. Louis, was appointed head of the Springfield Diocese in 1975. He had been serving, prior to that time, as auxiliary bishop of St. Louis. He also served as pastor of the Old Cathedral on the St. Louis riverfront.

The bishop was noted for his promotion of racial and religious harmony and his concern for the aged. For the past six years, he conducted a successful "Come on Home for Christmas" program directed to Catholics who had become lax in the practice of their religion.

Miller tells of threats by Brimberry

By PATHAY LUTZ

for the Press-Record

Threats against his family prevented Thomas Brimberry's brother-in-law, Arthur Miller Jr. of Granite City, from telling the authorities of Brimberry's illegal activities, Miller testified Wednesday in the trial against Collinsville attorney James Massa and Duane Skinner, a former Pontoon Beach trustee.

Miller told the jury that he had wanted to remove his money from a Stix and Co. account and "get out altogether." He told Brimberry to take him to Stix and Co. to remove the money, but Brimberry refused to let Miller into the building, saying, "You shouldn't go in there because you'll be getting a lot of people in trouble."

Securities and Exchange Commission Attorney Ronald Kane asked "Who did Brimberry say would get into trouble?" and Miller answered, "Myself, Brimberry, Jim Massa and a lot of other people."

Miller then testified that he had Brimberry drive him to the Internal Revenue Service in East St. Louis, where he said he would tell them of Brimberry's activities. Miller did not go inside, however, because Brimberry once again told him that he "would be getting a lot of people in trouble."

At this point, Miller testified, Brimberry also made threats against Miller's family.

Miller told Skinner of the threats at a meeting in Skinner's car a few days after the argument with Brimberry.

Miller testified, Skinner had come to Miller's house to speak with him about the argument and, "He said he came to make sure that I wouldn't do anything silly," Miller said. "I told him that Tom had made threats against my life and my family's lives. I told him that I had threatened to turn Brimberry into Stix and into the IRS and let them straighten everything out."

Skinner testified that he began dealing with Brimberry after he had seen Jerry Maeras bring large amounts of money to Brimberry at the site of Miller Excavating, Inc., Route 182 and Mockingbird Lane, and split the money with Brimberry. "I noticed that Jerry Maeras was bringing lots of money to Tom and splitting it with him," Miller said. "I told him (Brimberry) that I wanted to make money in the stock market, too."

When Brimberry called Miller several days later, they agreed to open an account at Stix in Miller's name and to divide the dividends equally.

Miller admitted that he received approximately $250,000 to $300,000 from the account, but lost most of it gambling in Las Vegas.

Miller also testified that Skinner's involvement was to deliver money from the account to both Miller and Brimberry. Relating one incident, Miller said, "Once Duane came out to the job site and handed me an envelope with $1,000 in it. I knew that I was supposed to get $1,100, so I asked Duane why it was $100 short. He said that Tom

Greathouse arraigned

Walter "Shang" Greathouse pleaded not guilty Monday to charges of official misconduct, conspiracy to commit bribery and failure to report a bribe.

President of the Metro-East Sanitary District and a member of the Madison County Zoning Board of Appeals, Greathouse was arraigned before Circuit Judge P. J. O'Neill in Edwardsville after voluntarily surrendering to authorities. Greathouse is free on a $25,000 recognizance bond.

Greathouse's lawyer, Bruce Cook, argued in court that there is no need for his client to be fingerprinted and photographed, which is the normal procedure when a person is charged with a crime.

Cook said that fingerprints and photographs of Greathouse already exist and are readily accessible to authorities.

Assistant State's Attorney Keith Jensen argued that the procedure is normal in bookings, but Judge O'Neill ruled that fingerprints and photographs are required when a person is arrested and Greathouse voluntarily surrendered.

The judge said he would reconsider if the state is unable to obtain fingerprints from Greathouse's military records and a photograph from any source. Cook also filed a motion to dismiss the charges on several grounds.

The official misconduct charge involves two offenses—the MESD post and the zoning board—and, therefore, should be considered as two separate offenses, the motion says.

Jensen further claims that the charge of failure to report a bribe does not state clearly when the alleged offense took place. The conspiracy charge does not place when the alleged offense took

Lead levels high, but not in humans

By GEORGEANN MCGEE

of the Press-Record

State air pollution and public health officials reported today they found no evidence of high lead intake among residents tested here. At the same time, officials are strongly urging those living within a half-mile of a downtown smeltering plant to take precautions, due to high lead levels detected in area-wide soil samples.

The study released this morning is the result of a state lead investigation launched in Granite City, Madison and Venice, after an air monitor at 15th Street and Madison Avenue in 1981 revealed the highest level of airborne lead violations ever recorded in the state.

Air lead levels have since dropped, but still are not low enough to meet federal air standards.

The Illinois Attorney General's Office was expected to meet in Springfield today with representatives from Taracorp Industries, St. Louis Lead Recyclers and Tri-City Truck and Trailer Repair, to discuss immediate measures to prevent further lead pollution.

All those companies are located within an area encircling the 1500

Ordeal for blind woman

By PATHAY LUTZ

for the Press-Record

According to the "White Cane" law passed in Illinois in 1973, a blind person has the legal right to be accompanied by a certified guide dog in all public accommodations. For at least one Granite Cityan, at times, is not worth the paper upon which it is printed.

Lee Asher, 23, a legally-blind woman with a certified guide dog, invited the Press-Record to accompany her on a return trip to a restaurant in which she previously had difficulty being served because of her seeing-eye dog.

The state statute defines public accommodations as "public facilities, hotels, restaurants, stores, places of amusement and resort, and all other places to which the public is invited" and states that blind persons cannot be prohibited from bringing seeing-eye dogs inside with them.

LEE AND HER 'EYES.'

Miss Asher said that in mid-March, she was told by Gene Carey, manager of Ray's Truck Plaza on Chain of Rocks Road at Illinois Route 3 in Mitchell, that she had to leave the restaurant, although she displayed her dog's certification and a copy of the white cane law.

Carey claimed that several customers were complaining about the dog, she related. Madison County sheriff's deputies were called to resolve the matter.

Miss Asher made a report to the deputies and a letter explaining the law was sent to Carey.

Miss Asher felt that the issue had been resolved and she invited a Press-Record reporter to accompany her to the restaurant to discuss a possible human interest story on the help she has received from the Pontoon Beach Lions Club.

The reporter, Miss Asher, her friend,

Bob Grass, and her guide dog went to the restaurant, ordered coffee and began a discussion. They were there an hour and 20 minutes and were preparing to leave when trouble broke out.

Carey and a woman who refused to identify herself began yelling at Miss Asher, with Carey telling her, "I told you not to bring that damn dog in here!"

It was no surprise that every patron in the restaurant looked to see what the shouting was about. Carey and the woman demanded to see Miss Asher's credentials which entitle her to bring a guide dog in a restaurant.

They also demanded to see the dog's credentials, the dog's tags and the reporter's credentials (the reporter did not have credentials with her).

After Miss Asher complied, Carey asked, "Do you take that dog with you when you eat at other restaurants?" When she responded that she did, he

Board endorses I-255 proposal

By NANCY WEIL

of the Press-Record

The Madison County Board went on record Wednesday as supporting construction of the final link of Interstate 255, which has been the subject of considerable opposition from various groups and some board members.

A move to table the resolution was defeated 14 to 12.

The resolution was adopted after the board heard appeals from a representative of a group organized to oppose the interstate and an employee of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

In representing Save the American Bottoms Essential Resources group, John Haynes, a Granite City lawyer, told the board that IDOT had not presented the public with an alternative when the proposal for I-255 was first discussed.

Federal monies totaling $75 million for construction of the interstate should be used to upgrade and widen existing highways, such as Route 3, and Highways 111 and 137, he said.

The concept of building the 5½-mile interstate to solve traffic congestion problems "is incredible," he told the board, and would result in the destruction of "some of the most productive farmland in the state."

About 500 acres of farmland in the American Bottoms will be taken out of

BAC ranks second in national math tests

Belleville Area College ranked second in the nation in the second round of tests given by the American Mathematical Association of Two-Year Colleges. Ken Nelson, the son of William and Irene Nelson of Granite City, was a member of the team.

Three tests are given every year locally and compared on a national level. In the first round of tests for the year BAC also placed second. The third test will be administered in April. Last year BAC's team placed first in the nation for the total of the three tests.

In addition to BAC's team score, two BAC students, who are dually enrolled at the college and in high school placed individually.

Ted Meyer of Millstadt, a student at BAC and at Belleville Township High School West, placed fourth.

Mike Rafferty of Belleville, a student at BAC and Belleville Township High School East, tied for ninth place.

The other top BAC team members included Bruce Peters of Marissa, Phong Nguyen of Belleville and Laren Love of Belleville.

ARREST YOUTHS AT PRATHER JHS

Three youths, allegedly warned on previous occasions to stay off Prather Junior High School grounds, were arrested late last week and charged with criminal trespass to property.

Between 10 and 15 students and three non-students were near the Prather baseball field when police were called.

In a court appearance two hours later, Jeffrey D. Riggs, 18, of 2300 W. 23rd St., pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $125.

The other two youths, 14 and 15 years old, also pleaded guilty to criminal trespass. Each was fined $65, with $450 of the amount to be stayed (deducted) in each case if perfect attendance records are maintained at school until the current school year is completed.

DR. ALEX DATUIN, a neurologist-psychiatrist, has been appointed clinical director of Psychiatric Services at St. Elizabeth medical Center. He will be responsible for overseeing SEMC's psychiatric services. Dr. Datuin has been a member of the SEMC staff since 1968. He currently serves as president-elect of the medical staff. He also is an assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at Washington University Medical School.

SERVE WARRANT

A 16-year-old Madison youth, who was one of two persons allegedly chasing a group of youths through the downtown Granite City area during the weekend, was questioned by police and then arrested on an active warrant alleging failure to appear in court on a curfew charge. He was released after posting a $102 cash bond.

Buy America, dislocated worker, minor ID legislation in Ill. House

By SAM W. WOLF
State Representative

Much of the action in the Illinois House last week took place in committees. By April 15 bills must be introduced and posted for a committee hearing.

We have three weeks from then to hear all bills in committee and report them to the floor for a vote. Obviously, with more than 1,100 bills introduced to date, the next few weeks promise to be hectic.

Some of the bills reported out of committee last week include:

HB 424 — legislation to aid seniors with the cost of their prescription drugs. The bill allows seniors who qualify for circuit breaker relief to substitute pharmaceutical assistance for the normal additional flat grant.

HB 561 — "Buy America" legislation which states that all contracts entered into by units of government must contain a provision that only American manufactured goods and materials will be used in the performance of the contract.

HB 983 — legislation which allows persons who are fired or laid off to continue, at their own expense, group accident and health insurance coverage at the current premium rate for a period of 12 months.

HB 543 — passes supplemental appropriations for federal funds through the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs for the dislocated workers program.

Seventeen dislocated workers projects will be established throughout the state for job retraining and relocation.

Many bills have reached the floor and passed the House of Representatives. While the majority of legislation is still in committee or awaiting debate on the floor, legislation passed last week includes:

HB 67 — amends the Code of Correction to base the amount of restitution awarded to victims at the actual out-of-pocket losses suffered by the victim, rather than the financial capacity of the defendant.

HB 108 — amends the Probate Act to prohibit a person who intentionally and unjustifiably causes another's death from inheriting or receiving any property or benefit as a result of the death.

HB 526 — amends the School Code to require boards of school directors to allow time for public comment at regular and special meetings. This bill is a result of several hearings held by school boards or officials regarding school budgets. In some cases, public comment has been denied.

New bills which may be of interest and recently introduced include:

HB 872 — would prohibit the state conducting business or paying certain funds to private clubs or organizations which discriminate on the basis of sex, race or religion.

Minor Identification and Protection Act which requires a local law enforcement agency to take fingerprints of a minor, upon request of the parent or guardian, and furnish a fingerprint ID card.

HB 982 — creates the prison population Impact Note Act which requires the administrative office of the Illinois courts to prepare a written prison population impact note.

Such notes would be required for any bill introduced into the House or the Senate. The purpose or effect of which may be to increase the prison and jail population in the state by creating new criminal offenses or increasing the penalties for existing offenses.

HB 651 — would appropriate $20,000 to the Set Aside Pheasant Stamp Fund for use by the Illinois Department of Conservation in operating a program to improve the state's pheasant habitat.

Many people working in the field of alcohol and drug dependence have been concerned about the separation of those two areas and have discussed combining the two fields under one agency.

However, differences of opinion on how and where alcohol and drug agencies belong have, to date, delayed any consolidation effort.

House Joint Resolution 22 has just passed the 116 House, receiving 106 favorable votes. The legislation creates the Joint Committee on the Consolidation of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Programs, with a reporting date to the Illinois General Assembly of June 1983.

This bill, if passed by the Senate and signed by the governor, will be a major step toward reorganization. It will allow input from the various concerned agencies and providers for proper implementation and transition. These are only a few of the new bills and issues, but they certainly will provide you with an idea of the range of subjects being covered this session.

Charge Madison man with assault

While riding a motorcycle at Sixth and Rhodes streets in Madison late last week, John Reed, 1521 Fourth St., Madison, alleged a man in a brown station wagon with the rear window broken tried to run his cycle off the road.

When the motorist pulled alongside, Reed asked him why he had tried to hurt him and the man replied that he intended to beat the "cyclist," Reed alleged. The man then chased Reed to the latter's residence and police were called.

A description of the station wagon was broadcast and Granite City police stopped a vehicle, which resembled the station wagon involved in the incident, in the 3100 block of Nameoki Road.

The driver, identified as Timothy G. McCoy, 20, of 1629 Fifth St., Madison, was transferred to Madison and charged with assault on complaints signed by Reed. McCoy was released on notice to appear in the Granite City court May 20.

ACCIDENT INJURES WOMAN AND INFANT

Mrs. Carol J. Bradshaw, 24, of 4412 Nameoki Road, and Holly Bradshaw, seven months, were injured in an accident and taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center during the weekend.

According to reports, Mrs. Bradshaw was attempting to make a left turn from Nameoki Road into Faith Avenue when her vehicle was struck from the rear by a van operated by Jerry A. Barnes, 17, of 2321 Cardinal Ave. Both vehicles were southbound.

Program focuses on Mo. Botanical Garden

One of the country's largest and most prestigious botanical gardens is located in our own backyard. Viewers may learn from the professionals at the Missouri Botanical Garden in "Seasons of the Garden," a pilot for a proposed series, which will air Sunday, April 24, at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 9. The half-hour program hosted by Philip Kerr, an actor familiar to local audiences from his work at the Repertory Theatre of St. Louis, focuses appropriately on orchids, since the Missouri Botanical Garden is the most active tropical botany research institution in the world. Orchids have been among mankind's favorite flowers for more than 4,000 years, having their roots in Greek legend; the gods created the flower from a passionate young man named Orchid as punishment after he attacked a princess. Today, the American Orchid Society claims 22,000 members.

"Seasons of the Garden" offers little-known facts about orchids. For example, few people realize that there are more than 20,000 different varieties of wild orchids, some small enough to be grown in a thimble and with blooms that must be viewed with the aid of a magnifying glass. Man has created more than 75,000 additional orchid hybrids. One orchid species, Vanilla planifolia, supplies the world with the flavor vanilla.

The program also includes a segment with horticulturist Steve Provine who presents a in-depth lesson on raising orchids at home. Instructions are given for growing three varieties: the Cattleya, or Corsage orchid; the Phalaenopsis, or Moth orchid; and the Paphiopedilum, or Lady Slipper orchid. Provine discusses supplies needed, how to display the plants and season-by-season steps in year-round care.

Kerr interviews Dr. Peter Raven, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden and a pre-eminent spokesman on the implications that destruction of tropical forests has for man. Raven explains the imaginative methods orchids use to attract pollinating insects. As man continually destroys huge tracts of tropical forests, Raven says, many orchid species, some of which probably are still undiscovered, will be lost. There is no way to predict the effect this will have on the complex interactions between tropical plants and animals.

Board can aid utility customers

The citizen utility board (CUB) concept may be an idea whose time has come in Illinois.

It passed the House Public Utilities Committee on Tuesday and garnered backing from both Speaker Michael Madigan and Minority Leader Les Daniels. And it gained approval at yesterday's meeting of the Madison County Board.

Madigan, who heads the big Democratic majority along with Leader Les Daniels, calls the CUB desperately needed. Daniels says both parties should join in giving consumers "the help they need" in evaluating utility proposals.

Forms would be distributed enabling utility customers to contribute $5 a year if they wish to do so. Participants would elect a member from each Congressional district to a board, which would hire experts to represent the public before the Illinois Commerce Commission and other public bodies.

Both the CUB plan and the idea of elected rather than appointed ICC members received strong backing in advisory voting by the public this spring.

Madigan said Monday that "utility rates have gotten too high" but that legislators should not throw into the election arena a panel whose work is "too important and too complicated" to be decided by partisan campaigns.

He called for possible changes in the method of appointing commissioners, and for phasing out over five years the ICC's power to include continuing construction costs in basic rates. He would ban former ICC employees from taking utility jobs for one year after leaving the commerce commission, would open most ICC deliberations to the public, and would prohibit utility shutoffs between Dec. 1 and March 31.

We endorse the board proposal if there are appropriate modifications. One of the modifications ought to be to allow utilities to continue to advertise; no entity can fare well if it is walled off from the public.

I-255 would aid this community

Completion of the final 5½-mile link of Interstate 255 that will cut through the American Bottoms has been the source of controversy and confusion, as was evident at Wednesday's Madison County Board meeting.

But the board, after adopting a resolution urging the Illinois Department of Transportation to upgrade existing highways as soon as possible, chose to endorse the final link.

We agree with the resolution and the advice of board member H. Jack Frandsen (D-Alhambra) who said the farmers involved must now work toward establishing proper drainage and receiving adequate compensation.

Some 500 acres of farmland will be taken out of productivity with the completion of the link, but we believe the benefits of the interstate will significantly outweigh taking the land. Much farmland in Madison County is idle under the Payment-In-Kind (PIK) program which allows farmers a percentage of their total yield in exchange for keeping land out of production.

Surplus yields in the county are expected and we do not believe that removing an additional 500 acres from productivity will drastically alter the lives of those involved. We do support generous compensation for the land and we also urge the Illinois Department of Transportation to carefully and cautiously consider drainage problems in the area.

Although opponents say I-255 will take industry away from Granite City, we believe the opposite will be true. Completion of the controversial link could provide jobs for many of the unemployed; it would provide safety for those who must now drive highways that are in terrible condition and it would make travel more efficient in the area.

Despite all of the cited disadvantages, we believe completion of the final link will benefit many people in this economically depressed area.

Just 'relative responsibility'

The Reagan administration is trying to restore a measure of relatives' responsibility to the welfare laws. The federal government has published a Medicaid regulation that would permit states to require the adult children of Medicaid recipients to share the cost of their parents' nursing home care.

The effort may be well-intentioned, that is, if it is intended to impress upon all citizens that they have family responsibilities, that children cannot ethically desert their parents when the parents are old and poor and turn the old folks over to the care of the general taxpayers.

People of other cultures have the impression that Americans don't care for their parents, don't respect their elderly relatives and seek to rid themselves of any responsibility for caring for the aged in their families. It is not a pretty picture, and it is not entirely false.

On the other hand, if the intention of the Reagan administration is to keep old people off the taxpayers' backs by punishing the children for the poverty of the parents, the effort is not well-intended.

In practice, the regulation would be likely to cause many old people to refuse to go to nursing homes when they should go but can't pay and don't want to impose upon their children. And there would be cases where the children would be estranged from their parents simply because they have to help pay their parents' nursing home bills.

Family responsibility simply cannot be enforced by law. It will take more than a bureaucratic order to enforce the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

Scare tactics instead of debate

Hardly a day goes by that Missouri Senator Jack Danforth does not have at least one letter in our mail sack and they all say the same thing — Danforth is strongly for the 10 percent withholding on interest and dividends from savings. We can only speculate that Danforth realizes that the plan is about to go "down the drain" and is making a last-ditch effort to save it.

Our friends in the banking and savings industries tell us that the program, due to go into effect July 1, will require an enormous amount of paperwork (or computer time since few use paper any more). Perhaps that will create more jobs here, but at the expense of the banks, say these are already difficult times on them.

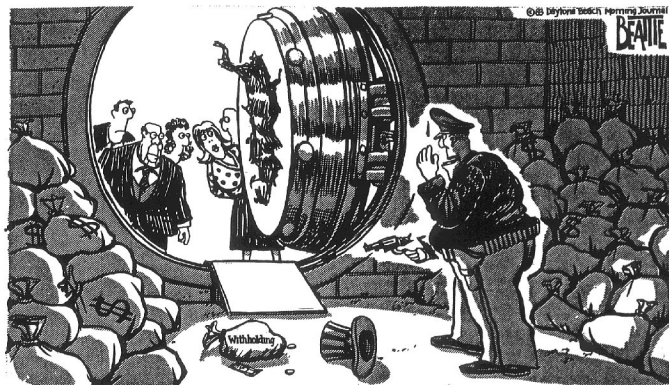

We are not convinced that the program will stop enough "tax cheaters" to justify the extra work for the banks. Neither are we convinced that Sen. Danforth is putting all of his cards on the table when he says the IRS would have to hire between 30,000 and 40,000 new agents to match bank reports with income tax returns. Again, if they would hire those agents from the Quad-City area, we may be 100 percent in favor of it.

We like to think that most people are honest and fill out honest tax returns. We also believe that the threat of an IRS audit is sufficient to keep most others in line.

The government already is improving the reporting system between the IRS and savings institutions. In our opinion, that should be all that is needed. The withholding on dividends and interest should be scrapped now, and not at the very last minute, after the financial institutions have gone to all the trouble to lay the groundwork for the withholding program.

It's kind of like the gasoline rationing stamps. We spent millions to print them, never used them, now we are paying a fortune to store them and gasoline is plentiful. Financial institutions should be spared such a comedy of errors.

"I think I know who did it... The only thing that's been taken is 10% of the interest on everybody's savings."

Press-Record readers were asked how they feel about the 10 percent withholding tax on savings interest effective July 1, that is designed to detect those who cheat on their tax declarations.

"I'm not sure why they're doing it. It's to put the squeeze on us little guys, I guess."

Olene Earhart, Granite City

"I've delved into it a bit. My husband is in favor of it. I just really don't know. I'll have to wait and see the outcome. I think it may keep some (tax cheaters) a little more honest."

Martha Bandy, Granite City

"I've heard my husband talk about it, but I really haven't thought about it, to tell you the truth. It's foreign to me. It's like my body rejected it. It's like a dictatorship."

Willis Shepard, Granite City

"I really think it's unnecessary. It's also something that stifles savings. How is the average person going to get ahead if they (the government) keep taking our money? I heard on the radio today that the IRS already has the 1099 form to catch cheaters. That seems to be an adequate way without putting a burden on the people, banks and savings institutions for trying to catch cheaters. I think it will hurt the honest people more."

Retraining offers hope to local unemployed

To the Editor:

The $80,000 job training grant designated for Madison County will offer hope to hundreds of workers idled by plant shutdowns.

The funds come to Illinois through the federal Job Training Partnership Act for employment and training programs for dislocated workers. A dislocated worker is one who has been laid off or let go because of a plant closing, or one who has exhausted or is ineligible for unemployment compensation.

Granite City residents are all too familiar with plant closings. Unemployment in the city has been more than or near twenty percent. This grant will mean new hope for many who couldn't see an end to their economic problems.

The grant, which will fund the program entitled Project

Center (Center for Assessment, Retraining and Employment), is to be administered by Madison County.

The center will set up new job training classes and begin referrals about two weeks after the county receives the grant.

Illinois' share of the jobs bill amounts to approximately $5.3 million.

Many of the jobs our people have worked at all of their lives will never be available again. It is essential that we provide these people with an avenue out of unemployment.

We need these workers in order to revitalize our state and national economies. Without employment opportunities, recovery cannot happen.

Ryan supports drug awareness campaign here

To the Editor:

I would just like to express my delight at having heard about the cooperative effort in Madison County to raise awareness of the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse among our young people.

The essay and poster contest is a wonderful idea that I hope attracts all the school children in Madison County. Alcohol and drug abuse is a major problem in our schools that extends into the whole community. Our younger citizens face constant pressure from their peers and other outside forces that too often lead them into the dangerous world of substance abuse. It is awareness campaigns like this one that help our children understand the horrors of that world and the pain and suffering it inflicts on their friends and family. I would like to commend the Madison County state's attorney's and sheriff's offices, the office of the regional superintendent of schools, the Northwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, the Placita Health Care organization and Citizens Against Drug Abuse for this cooperative effort. The generosity of the Madison County Bar Association and the Collinsville Rotary Club in offering the prize money should be applauded, as well.

If my office can be of any assistance in this endeavor, I would be more than happy to respond. Keep up the good work.

Asks, are we really saving?

To the Editor:

Cents-off coupons and refunds. Are we really cost cutting?

We try to save every penny possible these days, but we may be putting more of a strain on our poor economy. Remember the old saying, "Nothing for free." The closest you can get to something for free is life, love and happiness. Food, paper towels and soap are not free.

When we use these coupons to save a few pennies, who's really paying the extra cost?

To create a product, it must be processed, packaged, marketed and then sold. This must all be paid for by someone. The consumer gets the burden put right back on him. We know the companies are out to make money, so someone has to be the scapegoat.

If even a small part of these cost-cutting expenses could be abolished, our costs could be lowered so everyone would benefit from reductions on their grocery bill.

We are always looking for something for free, but how often do we take a look behind the surface for the "catch." Remember, "you get what you pay for."

Supports bill to end dogfighting in Illinois

To the Editor:

End dogfighting in Illinois. Rep. Roger McAlluffe, a state officer, has introduced HB 485, which will make dogfighting a felony. McAlluffe knows this is the only way it will be ended in Illinois.

We write your state representative and Rep. Aaron Jaffe or John Cullerton, chairman and vice-chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Stratton Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Everyone knows that live kittens and puppies are strung up in onion bags as training tools for this vicious, but very lucrative, "sport," and that fighting dogs are given drugs to make them crazed — to assure that each event is bloody enough to satisfy the bloodthirsty spectators.

Wipe this atrocity out by supporting HB 485.

SAYS MAYOR SAYS 'LOSING HIS GRIP'

To the Editor:

In Madison's aldermanic elections, the candidates backed by the mayor did get elected, but these candidates got a bare majority of the votes cast in contested elections. Less than 53 percent of the votes in the three contested aldermanic races were cast for the administration-backed candidates.

The mayor is losing his grip on the city of Madison.

Cupboard bare, state transition team will say

Governor James R. Thompson has named an Illinois-Chicago transition team to assist Chicago Mayor-elect Harold Washington in understanding financial, educational, social and transportation problems his new administration faces in the current session of the General Assembly.

Thompson said the same sort of briefing will be available to other mayors newly elected last week.

"The election is over and now the new city administration must understand, and understand quickly, that state revenues are not available now to meet many of Chicago's educational and transportation financial needs," the governor said. He is pushing for major state tax increases this summer.

"State officials stand ready to brief Mayor-elect Washington and his staff on the issues that are key in the state-city relationship," the governor related.

He added that the state stands ready to work with all officials in Illinois regarding the issues they face.

"Because of revenue shortfalls and other burdens on state revenues, city officials must realize that state assistance — as available under the present revenue structure — is not sufficient to meet the financial needs that exist throughout the state," the governor said.

The Illinois-Chicago transition team will be chaired by Paula Wolf, a Chicago resident and director of the governor's program staff.

Also serving on the team are Robert Mandeville, director of the Bureau of the Budget.

Richard McClure, assistant to the governor for intergovernmental relations.

And John Kramer, Illinois Transportation Department secretary.

Venice reconsiders former cable TV offer

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

A barrage of questions, skepticism and some critical remarks greeted Doyle J. Dugans Sr., CATV Systems and Associates franchising manager, upon his long-awaited return to a Venice City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Delving into what has occurred and what may happen in the future regarding the city of Venice's cable television franchise agreement with CATV, occupied Mayor Tyrone Echols and the Venice aldermen during the lengthy session.

Canvassing ballots from the April 12 election in which three incumbent aldermen were returned to office also was undertaken by Mayor Echols, City Clerk Dewey Brawley and City Attorney Lawrence Hartman.

The official canvass results were delivered by Brawley Wednesday to Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles for certification.

Each of the first two to help get GCC off to a successful start.

With no state funds available to establish additional campuses or centers, the unique approach has been devised in order to enhance the community college district's services to the northern portion of its territory.

It is hoped to increase local high school graduates' attendance at BAC from nine percent to more than 25 percent.

A five-member local board will advise the district's seven-member board of trustees on ways to best serve this community.

The BAC president

Re-elected council members will be officially seated at the next council session Tuesday, May 3. Mayor Echols announced that they expected to be seated Tuesday night and had family members present.

Dugans' appearance before the council Tuesday was a surprise to many present. Earlier he had contended that he was no longer connected with CATV Systems, but those reports apparently were erroneous and his business card continues to list him as CATV franchising manager.

Only the financial backing of the New York partners for franchises obtained by Dugans is no longer in effect, Mayor Echols informed a reporter.

Dugans was accompanied to the meeting here by Greg Bucy, president of Cybernetic Communications, Inc. of Oklahoma City, Okla., with whom Dugans is now associated, and Mitch Hutchens, a construction contractor, also from Oklahoma City.

Similar delays problems have been experienced by Centreville (Ill.), which has since awarded the cable franchise to TeleNational Cable TV Co. An interested observer at the Venice meeting was Ellis Green, an aide to Mayor Riley Owens of Centerville.

"Last time I was here I thought we were ready to go with the cable system, but we found out that New York (partners) really didn't want to build in small towns," the aldermen and audience were told by Dugans, who is based in Tallahassee, Fla.

"We have not yet started building here and in Brooklyn (Ill.)," he added.

The Venice City Council passed an ordinance Aug. 24, granting a non-exclusive franchise to CATV Systems at which time it was claimed the system would be operational by early spring of 1983.

Repeated efforts by Mayor Echols to reach Dugans, who had addressed the council about a year before the franchise action and again at a public hearing last August, proved futile and he has expressed his annoyance on several occasions.

Earlier this month, Mayor Echols was advised by a CATV spokesman in New York that none of the dealing with Venice were known at the New York office.

At Tuesday's meeting, Bucy offered "to post a $15,000 performance bond by next Wednesday (April 27)." If the community still is willing to continue the franchise agreement with CATV, the council has not yet voted on the ordinance granting the franchise.

Despite Bucy's offer to present the council a hand-written agreement to enable passage Tuesday night, the aldermen decided to delay a decision until the next meeting when the CATV representatives were asked to return.

Although some persons may be disappointed at the limit on the number of full-time positions, it must be remembered that the venture is somewhat experimental in nature; it already involves financial risk for the college, Dr. Wissore commented.

Railroads say Illinois drivers slated to pay truckers' costs

The opening shot in a battle over highway taxes in Illinois was fired Tuesday by a new group that says ordinary drivers are slated to pay too much. The group is linked to railroads.

Former Illinois Secretary of Transportation Langhorne Bond assailed the Department of Transportation's tax proposal.

"Motorists will pay much more than their share in taxes if the proposal passes," Bond said at press conferences in Springfield and Chicago.

"If the program becomes fully implemented, Illinois motorists will pay $184 million a year in subsidies to the heavy truck industry. It is not surprising that the truck industry has endorsed the program," he said. "The industry and the Department of Transportation worked together in formulating it."

"The highway taxes paid by every user should approximately match the damage caused by that user. No less of highway user, from motorcycles and automobiles, to pickup trucks, campers and huge semi-trailers should pay to repair damage caused by another user," Bond contended.

Vadalabene introduces bill to encourage coal research

State Senator Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville) has introduced legislation aimed at giving a boost to the Illinois coal industry and the economy of Southern and Southwestern Illinois. The Illinois Coal Technology Assistance Act (SB 1127) makes a one-third share fraction of the Public Utility Revenue Tax available for grants to advanced coal development projects and coal utilization research.

"Illinois coal can be a key to the revitalization of our economy because its increased use will provide employment in the coal mines, in the factories that will be powered by coal and in the new industries that will produce coal combustion equipment," according to Vadalabene. "The Illinois Coal Technology Assistance Act will give the state of Illinois a consistent source of coal research funding instead of the on-again, off-again support that coal research has received in past years."

Vadalabene added that the

Madison schools plan childhood screenings here

The Madison public schools now are making appointments for their annual screening of 3-, 4-, and 5-year-old children on April 26, 27 and 28.

Parents who live in the Blair School area should call 876-4818 for an appointment and Harris School area parents should call 777-6864. Parents should call by April 25 for more information and an appointment.

Information about kindergarten registration is also available by calling the schools.

Meadowlane not on county system

A story with the headline, "Committee rejects Gaslight sewers" in the April 18 Press-Record erroneously said that the Meadowlane Subdivision is hooked onto the Madison County sewer system.

The subdivision is not presently hooked into the sewer system, but is owned by Metro-East Utilities, operated by Jerry Wade. The story should have stated that the Madison County Sanitary Sewers for Special Service Area Number One Committee was concerned that, if it approved hooking the Gaslight - Lakeshire subdivisions into the system, that the owners of the Meadowlane sewers would want the same sort of agreement.

We regret the error.

EXPERT APPRAISING
MORRIS REALTY CO.

"The pavement damage done by heavy trucks will increase when Illinois is forced later this year to raise the maximum allowable weight for trucks to 80,000 pounds."

"Federal and state studies have demonstrated conclusively that damage to pavement increases geometrically with the weight of a vehicle. One 80,000-pound truck causes as much damage as 9,600 automobiles."

"A study by the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois concludes that heavy trucks in Illinois pay only half the highway costs that generate the department's tax program will reduce that payment even further."

"Seventy-four percent of the motor fuel tax increase on gasoline and diesel will be paid by passenger vehicle drivers."

"Car license fees will be increased up to 167 percent, compared to the 20 percent increase proposed for trucks."

"Even the heavy truck tax program announced by the department last week falls in its stated purpose."

"The extra tax on diesel will fall disproportionately on lighter trucks which already pay more than their fair share. The proposed plate fee on 80,000-pound trucks will not come close to paying for the damage caused by increasing the maximum weight of trucks from 73,280 to 80,000 pounds."

At the press conference, Bond announced the formation of EPTOW, an organization dedicated to the proposition that fairness in road taxes means "Everyone Pays Their Own Way."

EPTOW on Tuesday proposed a weight distance tax on heavy trucks as a way of bringing every user's highway taxes more into line with the damage done by that user. A weight distance tax is a tax levied for each mile a truck is driven on Illinois roads; the heavier the truck, the higher the tax.

The EPTOW proposal includes drastically reducing license fees for trucks subject to the weight distance tax and sharing the revenue with local governments whose road systems are also damaged by heavy trucks.

The reduction in license plate fees would help Illinois truckers, since present fees are paid disproportionately by Illinois-based trucks; unlike the fee system, trucks that are idle and not earning income would not pay taxes under weight distance, Bond said.

Ten states presently levy a weight distance tax. Collection and enforcement is neither difficult nor expensive; truck mileage information is already required to be reported, Bond said.

Among the Illinois organizations that have expressed support for a state weight distance tax are the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois, Chicago Motor Club, Illinois Environmental Council, Legislative Support Center, Illinois Audubon Society, Friends of the Earth and Central States Resource Center.

EPTOW is financed by the railroads of Illinois "in the belief that elimination of artificial transportation subsidies will promote competition, increase fairness, and improve the lot of the average motorist."

Vadalabene stated that he is seeking the support of all of the Illinois coal producers, coal combustion manufacturers and organized labor.

"This legislation will add a new dimension to our efforts to stimulate the Illinois coal industry and the Illinois economy. The funds that we may invest in coal research and development will give Illinois significant returns in the years to come," Vadalabene concluded.

Radioactive waste multi-state pact

Governor James R. Thompson favors ratification by Illinois of the proposed Midwest Interstate Compact on Low Level Radioactive Waste. He is asking lawmakers to approve the pact during their spring session.

The measure was introduced in both houses April 15.

"After weighing the alternatives, I am recommending that Illinois join the Compact because it currently presents the best way to resolve our low-level waste disposal problem," the governor said.

"I hope the legislature will hold extensive hearings on the matter. This is a national issue that faces every state."

"We in Illinois have a particular responsibility to deal with our low level radioactive wastes because of our state's considerable reliance on nuclear power."

Federal law sets a Jan. 1, 1986, deadline for each state to find a way to dispose of low-level wastes generated within its boundaries. The Low Level Waste Policy Act of 1980 encourages states to form regional compacts to handle wastes efficiently, economically and safely.

Illinois has seven reactors — more than any other state. Those reactors generate about 30 percent of the state's electricity.

Illinois ranks third nationally in the volume of wastes produced by its nuclear plants and the many medical, research and industrial institutions using radioactive materials. These facilities create about 40 percent of the low level wastes in the Midwest region.

Thompson said the only real alternative to joining the Compact is to develop an Illinois-only low-level site and attempt to restrict its use to waste generated in Illinois.

"That approach has many pitfalls," the governor said. "Legally, we might not be able to limit its use. Economically, it could be costly to initiate. Finally, it would have to be built within our borders," he said.

Federal law encourages formation of regional compacts by permitting the compacts to exclude waste originating in non-member states. The law is silent on whether individual states who do not join compacts may exclude other states from using their individual sites.

There currently are only two low-level radioactive waste sites in the nation — Barnwell, S.C., and Hanford, Wash. These sites form the basis of Southeast and Northwest compacts already developing, and both will exclude outside waste in the near future.

Illinois is one of 12 states which participated in negotiations leading up to the compact proposal and is still eligible to join the compact.

Once three states ratify, a compact commission will be established. That commission will create a management program. Congress must ultimately approve any compact.

Under terms of the proposed compact, member states would select the host state or states if no state volunteers. A member state designated as host can withdraw from the Compact without penalty within 90 days.

So far, Michigan and Iowa have ratified the Midwest Compact. It has passed both houses in Indiana and is expected to be signed into law there soon.

Low-level waste is considered to be any radioactive waste material that is not classified as high-level waste — the latter being almost entirely spent fuel from nuclear reactors.

Weber says he won't push for Greathouse resignation

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record
Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber has not always agreed with other county officials, particularly when decisions are made concerning cases being prosecuted by his office.

He openly criticized the county board for deciding not to oust Supervisor of Assessments James Barton after Barton was indicted in November for official misconduct, bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery.

But Weber says he is "not that upset" that County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer said he would not ask for the resignation of Walter "Shang" Greathouse, president of the Metro-East Sanitary District and a member of the zoning board of appeals.

Greathouse was indicted last week in the same alleged incident for official misconduct, conspiracy to commit bribery and failure to report a bribe.

Barton allegedly accepted $1,000 from landowner Nicholas Nichols and gave $500 to Greathouse to try and influence his vote in a zoning request to place a culvert in the Sanitary District ditch. Greathouse voted against Nichols' request, which was rejected by the zoning board of appeals.

Just two days before Barton was indicted, Hagnauer recommended to the county board that Greathouse be reappointed as commissioner of the MESD. Greathouse was being investigated then for his involvement in the alleged scheme.

Had the recommendation been rejected, the St. Clair County Board would have been allowed to appoint a commissioner and Madison County would have lost a spot on the MESD and majority control of the board.

At the time, Hagnauer said he (Greathouse) personally assured me this morning that he will resign immediately should he be legally implicated. The county board approved the recommended reappointment.

After Thursday's grand jury indictment, Hagnauer said he would not ask Greathouse to resign. Greathouse told reporters that he "absolutely" would not resign either position.

"Legally implicated does not necessarily mean indicted," Weber told the Press-Record. He said he remembered that particular county board meeting and, as an attorney, took special interest in what Hagnauer said.

"I have to back Nellie up," he added. The wording of Hagnauer's statement, he said, was "loose" and therefore could not be construed to mean that Greathouse's resignation would be requested if an indictment was returned.

According to Weber, it is fair that Greathouse continues in his duties, because the board chose not to oust Barton, although Weber says he still does not agree with the decision to allow the supervisor of assessments to remain in office.

Brimberry, Massa associates admit to 'blind trust'

By PATHAY LUTZ
of the Press-Record
Blind trust in James Massa and Thomas Brimberry allowed Joan Tosi and Jerry Maeras to play important roles in the embezzlement scheme which destroyed Stix and Co., testimony in Tuesday's, Stix & Co. fraud trial indicated.

"Because Mr. Massa asked me to," she replied.

She testified that Jerry Maeras would bring checks from Massa's office, and these checks would be lent back to Stix. Interest on these checks was divided equally between Massa and Maeras.

Although Mrs. Tosi was fired by Massa in April, 1980, Massa called her in December, 1980, to tell her that he had invested in her name. She testified. Asked if she thought that was irregular, Mrs. Tosi explained, "He told me that he had always said that if he saw a good stock, he would invest for me. When I asked him why I had left his employment seven months ago, he said, 'What price do you put on friendship?'"

Mrs. Tosi also was assured by Massa that she would not lose any losses on the stock.

When she received checks of profit from the investment, she noted that the address was not her own. "Mr. Massa told me that it was his cousin's address," she testified.

Relating her role as a "straw party" in the proposed Granite City nursing home property foreclosure, Mrs. Tosi said that the property is still in her name. "Mr. Massa had the property decided over to me as a 'straw party' (temporary ownership), but the property is still in my name," she said.

After receiving contacts from shareholders farming the land, she called Massa to change the deed, but Massa never made the change.

Helen (Kamadzki) Miller, Brimberry's mother-in-law, testified that she has not used her maiden name since her marriage, even though an account had been set up in that name at Stix and Co.

She testified that she had no reason to believe that Brimberry was stealing from Stix and Co., although "he seemed like he had more (money) than average."

She further testified that she never saw, never knew about, and never received any money from the account in her name.

Viva Elliott, Brimberry's secretary in many of his businesses, testified that Duane Skinner was the operator and accountant in many of these ventures.

Identifying checks which totaled more than $400,000, she said, "They were used in the operation of Miller Excavating."

Skinner operated these ventures because Brimberry did not want to be known as the financial backer of the businesses. "He (Duane Skinner) told me from day one that Mr. Brimberry did not want to be known as the owner," she said.

She also testified that she had once seen Skinner and Brimberry in Skinner's office where "stacks of money" were sitting on the desk.

"I saw several stacks of cash about this high (gesturing that it was about five inches high) on Mr. Skinner's desk," she testified.

She also testified that she had never seen a salary check paid to Duane Skinner.

In his day-long testimony on Monday, a somber Jerry Maeras related his activities as Brimberry's "gofer" in the embezzlement scheme.

Speaking in a barely audible voice, Maeras admitted that he forged articles of incorporation, stock certificates and checks because "Tom wanted me to."

Although Maeras indicated that he initially forged the articles of incorporation for Jerry S. Maeras, Inc., to construct a nursing home, he said that he continued with further forgeries because of all of the money coming in.

Maeras met Brimberry, he said, when Maeras was working at a gas station in Madison in 1974. Brimberry offered to let Maeras have a share in the nursing home project and to act as the home's manager. Assuming that Maeras, son of a former Madison mayor, would have "connections" which would make it easier to get the necessary permits.

Brimberry insisted that his own name be kept out of any transactions because it would be a conflict of interest.

The names used in the paperwork for the home were A. E. Shaw and J. A. Miller, and Massa served as the attorney for the project.

Maeras also testified that he had two Stix accounts in his name, but admitted that he never put any of his own money into the accounts. "Tom said that we would split and profits 50-50," he said. "I was to forge the names in return for half of the profits."

Maeras received nearly $1 million from these two accounts. Brimberry would remove the money from the accounts and have Maeras pick them up at Brimberry's home, convert them into cashier's checks which were payable to Massa. Maeras testified that he then gave them to Massa at Massa's law office in Collinsville.

Maeras received receipts for many of these checks from Mrs. Tosi in Massa's absence, but when he tried to get a receipt from Massa himself, Massa "got a little mad and said, 'You don't need a receipt,'" Maeras testified.

Asked if Massa knew that Maeras was forging Mrs. Maeras' maiden name to the checks, Maeras replied, "Yes."

Internal Revenue Service agents in the courtroom took notes as Maeras testified that interest from the accounts were reported on his income tax for the first time in 1980 because he had submitted a social security number for Alma E. Shaw when it was requested by Stix.

"I got a letter in the mail asking for A. E. Shaw's social security number," he related. "I finally sent it in myself."

Alteration ends in warrant arrest

Called to a disturbance in the 4600 block of Kirkpatrick Homes at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday, officers were led by Steven Sparks, 2003 Missouri Ave., to a residence where a friend's apartment, he was struck and kicked, allegedly by Carl L. Clark, 28, of 2929 Cayuga St., who made an accusation against him.

Officers located Clark at a residence in the 4600 block of the housing project, where he was arrested on a state complaint signed by Sparks, alleging battery.

Sparks requested medical attention and was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

At police headquarters, it was learned that Clark had an outstanding warrant on file, alleging failure to appear in court on a charge of driving while his license was suspended.

In a court appearance at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Clark was sentenced to serve 14 days in the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville on the charge contained in the warrant.

He pleaded innocent to the charge of battery and bond was set at $5,000 cash. A mittimus was issued and Clark was transferred to the Madison County Jail at 7:10 a.m. Wednesday.

State water plan hearing tonight

A public hearing of the Water Resources Commission will begin at 7 tonight at the Holiday Inn Alton Parkway. The hearing will open with a brief review of the State Water Plan by members of the Governor's Task Force.

State Representative Jim McPike (D-Alton) said, "We hope that the task force members can give the public some helpful information and we hope the public can give us input into our shared water concerns."

Among specific concerns on Thursday's agenda will be soil erosion and sediment control, water recreation, pollution, conservation, drought and flood planning and Illinois Water Use Law.

Representative Jim Rea (D-Chicago), commission chairman, said, "It has been a decade since we last revised the state water plan, and there have obviously been changes in our water situation since then. We need public input now to compile a plan that will be as current and effective as possible in dealing with local water problems."

Rep. McPike urged public participation in the hearing. "We need public input now to help us compile a plan that will be as current and as effective as possible in dealing with water problems. We have to determine what the problems are before we can correct them. Water quality control is going to have to be one of our major concerns in the 1980s. We hope this hearing will help focus our efforts on this very important issue."

State Senator Sam V. Adair (D-Edwardsville) said, "People tend to take for granted that there will always be water resources there when they want them. What we are trying to do with these hearings is to establish a plan so that we will always have water when we need it—where we need it—whether it's water in lakes and rivers or water from our faucets."

Sen. Vadalabene agreed, "We need public input if this plan is to fully address the water problems facing Illinoisans today, problems like sedimentation. As, if the loss of depth in our waterways and the loss of topsoil from farmland isn't enough of a problem, sedimentation can cause serious water pollution."

"People have to do something about erosion before we destroy our irreplaceable land and water resources. I think this hearing and the state Water Plan are a good start towards a solution."

Area legislators participating in the hearing will include Vadalabene and McPike.

"A lot of effort has gone into this plan," said Rep. Rea. "Even more will go into it before it is completed. We hope for the reactions of the public and their opinions in regard to their specific water problem and the Task Force in general."

'Memories' is theme of North's final concert

The Granite City High School North Vocal Music Department will present its Spring Concert on Tuesday, April 26, at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Since this will be the final concert to be presented at North, the theme of the concert is "Memory," and the concert will consist of music performed by the Vocal Music Department during the school's past 10 years.

The songs "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" and "Happiness" are from the musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" which was presented at North in 1973. A medley of songs from "The Sound of Music" will be reminiscent of the school's 1977 spring musical of the same name.

Medleys of tunes from

"Oliver" and "Oklahoma" represent the school musicals of 1978 and 1979 respectively. The Girls Glee Club will sing the title songs from the spring musicals of 1980 and 1981, "Hello, Hello!" and "Maine" as well as "Put on a Happy Face," "Hey Look Me Over," "If He Walked into My Life" and "Once Upon a Time."

"There's No Business Like Show Business" is the song that represents the school's 1982 musical "Annie Get Your Gun," and the energetic waltz "Henry Street" is from the 1983 musical "Fanny Girl."

A medley of George M. Cohan songs will be reminiscent of the school's 1976 Bicentennial Celebration at which it was performed.

Other songs that will be performed are "Side by Side," "Tradition," "You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile," "Day by Day," "Big Spender," "On Broadway," "Cabaret," "Tomorrow" and the theme of the concert "Memory."

The Advanced Mixed Chorus, Constance Madrigals, Sixth Hour Mixed Chorus and Girls Glee Club will be performing at the concert. Mrs. Gail Mueller is the choral director. Stage decorations and the program design are by Tim Stentzer.

Tickets may be purchased from any North Vocal student or at the door. The cost is 50 cents for students and 75 cents for adults. The public is being invited.

Seek sponsors for 'Wheels for Life'

Riders for the Saturday, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels for Life" bike-a-thon are asking Granite City area citizens to back their efforts by pledging a contribution for each mile they ride in the bike-a-thon. The bike-a-thon is a joint effort by the Glen Carbon Police Department and the Cottonwood Mall Merchants' Association.

"The money our riders earn will help continue St. Jude's life-saving studies of childhood cancer that has become so important to children all over the world," said bike-a-thon chairman Bill Moore, Glen Carbon Chief of Police.

Prizes will be awarded to the persons who collect the most pledges. These prizes include a new 10-speed bicycle, an aquarium and cash awards. Riders who raise $25 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt, and those raising $75 will receive a barrel tote bag," Moore said. Sponsor forms are available at the Glen Carbon Police Department, Mail Shop, Wal Mart, and Kroger. Prizes are on display in the mall.

The ride starts at Cottonwood Mall, and the Registration Booth opens at 9:30 a.m. and closes at 11:30 a.m. throughout the day so riders may start and finish any time during the day. Glen Carbon police will patrol the bike route.

Anyone interested in sponsoring a rider may call 1-280-7226.

Natural gas rate cut seen if Congress acts

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

A two-way approach to keeping utility costs affordable was outlined last week in Collinsville by officials of Illinois Power Company.

Speakers were Larry F. Altenbaumer, assistant treasurer and manager of finance, and Kenneth Robertson, director of gas supply. Luncheon hosts included Carl E. Mathias, Madison County service area manager of IP, and Al Carter, corporate director of media relations.

The principal speakers advocated passage of pending federal legislation to not only "hold the line" on natural gas costs but perhaps to reduce current gas rates.

And they urged inclusion of construction work in progress (CWIP) in the electricity rate base to ease the Decatur-based utility's borrowing costs.

The CWIP approach might not reduce electric power rates but it could minimize the need for future increases, a gathering of newsmen was told.

Partial CWIP inclusion was authorized early this year by the Illinois Commerce Commission when it was suspended pending further study.

"If we knew then what we know now" about the problems and delays associated with constructing a major power generating plant under close federal supervision, IP probably would have built a coal-fueled plant instead of the nuclear energy plant being erected at Clinton, Altenbaumer said in response to a question.

"Natural gas prices are too high, judging by customers' reactions to the price increases of the past 12 months, and the losses of industrial gas sales to oil since March 1, 1983," Robertson said.

"But they are not high because of oil prices. Three-quarters of home owners' gas bill from IP. Power is paid to the pipelines for gas. The pipelines pay about three-quarters of their receipts to the gas producers.

"The five main reasons behind high natural gas bills are:

"1. Liquefied natural gas (LNG) imported from Algeria at $7 per thousand cubic feet. This is more than twice the cost of new gas in this country.

"2. Canadian and Mexican gas imported at $5. Keep in mind, that a thousand cubic feet of gas will heat an average home on a cold winter day.

"3. Rigid and inflexible contracts between pipelines and producers for new gas supplies. These generally were entered into in the years before 1982 when producers were 'in the driver's seat' and could dictate contract terms.

"Many of the contracts signed after the gas shortage of the 1970s specified very high take-or-pay percentages of 90 to 100 percent of the well's capacity to produce gas. Before 1982, competition for new deep supplies of unregulated gas had driven prices up to $8 or $9 per thousand cubic feet.

"4. Provisions of the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act. These provisions ratchet prices up monthly at a time when prices should be declining.

"5. Pipeline rates that don't respond to supply and demand.

"Ill. Power is doing everything possible to keep natural gas prices down. We've been buying the lowest cost supplies available to us from our five pipeline suppliers," Robertson related.

"We're better equipped than most gas utilities to buy gas supplies from the lowest cost source. The system interconnections, eight storage fields, and leased storage capacity that served us so well during the gas shortages of the '70s are helping to keep gas costs down today.

"On Sept. 1, 1982, when Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co. changed from being our lowest-cost supplier, we reduced 'takes' from Panhandle by a third. Panhandle represents only seven percent of our supply. The change we made in our purchase patterns saved our customers $24 million a year at current pipeline rates.

"Due to our diversity of supply and our flexibility in purchase patterns, our cost of gas has been kept low. We do not buy Mexican gas.

"In light of the current adequate supplies of natural gas, we've reduced our gas storage field inventories by 15 percent. This will save a half-million dollars in 1983 and nearly $1 million in '84.

"We've resolutely opposed LNG importation before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Economic Regulatory Administration, the agencies which approved the project.

"We were joined in this fight by other utilities, by Senator Percy and by Congressman Michel. We're continuing the fight before the regulatory agencies and, if necessary, we'll pursue it through the courts.

"We're supporting legislation that will cure the current problems with the natural gas pricing law.

"The 1978 Act was passed to cure the problems of the gas shortage of the 1970s. The Act was a compromise that represented the collective wisdom of Congress. It set us on a course that will lead to ultimate deregulation of prices for new gas supplies developed since 1977.

"The Act has worked to produce an abundance of gas supply. But after five years, there is an obvious need for some corrections. We need to:

"1. Set a price cap for Algerian LNG.

"2. Renegotiate the import price for Canadian and Mexican gas.

"3. Roll back field gas prices to the 1982 levels.

"4. Reduce take-or-pay requirements so the lowest-cost supplies can be used.

"5. Set a price cap for high-cost U.S. gas.

"6. Revise pipeline rate designs to be more responsive to supply and demand.

"However, the regulation of prices for old gas should be continued, as provided in the Natural Gas Policy Act.

"These provisions are included in the 1983 Consumer Relief Act, H.R. 2154, sponsored by Cong. Gephardt of Missouri and co-sponsored by Cong. Simon and Cong. Durbin of Illinois, and Senate Bill 5996, introduced by Sen. Danforth, Eagleton and others," Robertson said.

Mathias, a Granite Cityan, in letters to IP customers is outlining a similar theory on "why utility bills are so high."

He points out that "bills are higher than last year, even though this winter was milder and many customers improved their home insulation and turned back their thermostats.

"The 1978 law is intended to remove government controls on the price of natural gas from newly developed underground wells," Mathias explained.

"Since 1978, the cost of natural gas to IP customers has increased 124 percent. Of this, 106 percent has gone directly to the pipelines, not IP. Our increased costs of providing service over the five years account for the remaining 16 percent. You can see why we're as upset as the public with the rising cost of gas."

Mathias and other IP spokesmen note that the utility has initiated stringent internal cost controls.

He adds, "We have intervened in every increase requested by our pipeline suppliers. This has involved more than 80 rate proceedings in five years.

"Our goal is an adequate supply at prices our customers can afford.

"Prices for gas from new wells must be reduced. Pipeline contract provisions such as excess 'take or pay' clauses must be changed."

In IP's annual report on 1982 operations, Chairman and President Wendell J. Kelley voiced confidence that we can continue to maintain a fair and mutually beneficial balance between the needs of our customers and those of the owners of our business, the shareholders."

Kelley said cost reductions totaled $40 million in 1982 and are projected at an additional $36 million in 1983.

Kilowatt-hour sales were 1.7 percent lower than in 1981. Gas therm sales rose by 5.8 percent, due mainly to severe cold in the first quarter of 1982.

Altenbaumer said Friday that earnings per share statistics tend to make some citizens believe Illinois Power is in better financial condition than it actually is.

Cash flow due to borrowing gives an unrealistic picture, he commented.

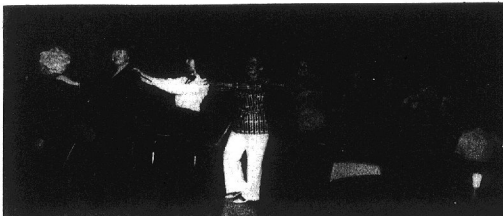

Although earnings per share have risen from $2.51 in 1972 to $3.94 in 1982, the amount earned from operations has fallen from $2.06 per share in 1973 to $1.29 last year.

Some recovery in home sales

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

Granite City area real estate sales have dropped from 87 percent of listings in the 1970s to 25 percent but some recovery is developing this year, Rotarians were told Tuesday.

Ray Kaegel, head of Kaegel Real Estate and Insurance, said the change from 87 to 25 percent is due to high mortgage interest and the increased cost and complexity of arranging home loans.

Local real estate sales totaled $19,207,000 in 1979 before slumping to $14,700,000 in 1980 and then recovering slightly to $15,822,000 in 1981, the speaker said.

The total fell to $9,367,000 in 1982. For the first three months of 1983, the figure is $3,400,000, Kaegel noted.

He said officials discourage "net listing" policies, which can lead to excessive commissions, and guaranteed sales, for the same reason.

When a real estate broker in the audience urged more lenient loan policies here, a bank executive said delinquencies are a key factor in governing mortgage policies.

Plant closings and unemployment tend to prevent a healthy volume of new and used home sales and purchases, the club was told.

Hopeful signs cited were continued interest reductions and greater public acceptance of the necessity to pay required points and percentages. Adjustable rate mortgages are enabling a number of families to qualify, it was related.

Although some creative financing is continuing, third and fourth layers of mortgages are not being recommended, Kaegel said.

Brokers active when the Multiple Listing Service (currently headed by Kaegel) was established in 1971 have decreased from 16 to nine, with affiliates falling from six to five. Employees have decreased from 125 to 65.

Typical listings of homes have risen from 350 five years ago to 800, updated weekly. Property placed with an agency is added to the multiple list after three days.

The Granite City Board of Realtors, with its predecessor, the Granite City Real Estate Exchange, was traced back to 1925. All nine of the incorporators are deceased but an original member, Henry "Hank" Lueders, is still active.

Ralph Morris is the son of one of the group's founders.

The late J. Wesley "Pop" Senef served as Realtors' secretary for 21 years, starting in 1925, Kaegel recalled. The group was active in efforts to enact city zoning from 1945 to 1958, when it was adopted.

Kaegel became active in the real estate field initially in 1953, joining George Stearns' Maryland Real Estate agency. He was introduced to the club Tuesday by John Tallgren, program chairman.

President Tom Thebeau presided and Robert Maxwell outlined plans for the club to host a Japanese girl from August 1983 to June 1984. She will attend Granite City High School as a senior and will reside with local families.

Thebeau reviewed membership goals and Richard West discussed attendance objectives.

Darryl Slater reported on the Rotary district conference he and Thebeau attended with 460 other Rotarians from 45 central Illinois clubs, and said the Granite City, Collinsville and Edwardsville clubs will host the 1984 District 646 conference next spring.

Plans are proceeding for installation of Donald Shaffner, a past president of the Granite City club and now district governor-elect, as the 1984-85 Rotary district governor.

Slater said the 1983 conference spotlighted Shaffner's role in fostering the youth exchange program; Alton and Godfrey Rotarians' drive to install a permanent Piasa bird image on the Mississippi River bluffs; and the North Peoria club's fund-raising project linked to positive remarks at Rotary meetings.

VA broadens care for those exposed to nuclear radiation

New instructions sent to Veterans Administration medical facilities April 5 broaden dramatically the access to VA medical care for veterans who have problems which they attribute to nuclear radiation.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Harry N. Walters directed VA's Department of Medicine and Surgery to revise the guidelines on this subject after he was advised that those who relate medical problems to radiation are treated differently from veterans who attribute their disabilities to Agent Orange.

The change was announced in testimony before the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, April 6.

Both groups were accorded special medical privileges in November, 1981, in legislation (PL 97-72) that required VA's chief medical director to determine the medical problems to be treated under rules that normally govern service-connected conditions. In authorizing that care, Congress expressed no view as to what conditions, if any might, in fact, be related to Agent Orange and radiation.

Government-wide research is underway to determine whether there might be any long-term effects on veterans from exposure to Agent Orange during the Vietnam War. Because these studies are on going, and despite the fact that no scientific link has yet been established between the spraying in southeast Asia and problems being reported by veterans, VA guidelines on this subject were quite liberal. Virtually any medical condition not clearly attributable to some known cause other than exposure to Agent Orange is to be treated by VA.

Regarding radiation, however, the original guidelines limited VA medical care to eligible veterans suffering from malignant conditions or thyroid nodules. The difference was based on the rationale that the effect of radiation has been clearly established through years of scientific research and exposure date is available on most people claiming adverse effects from exposure.

Much less scientific data exists on adverse effects of exposure to Agent Orange.

The guidelines issued April 5 regarding radiation parallel those issued originally on Agent Orange. They direct that each veteran who participated in the testing of a nuclear device or who participated in the occupation of Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, between Sept. 11, 1945, and July 1, 1946, will be provided a physical examination on request. The VA circular added: "Where the findings reveal a condition requiring treatment, the responsible physician shall make a determination as to whether that condition resulted from a cause other than the veteran's exposure to ionizing radiation. Veterans who meet the criteria of this circular may be treated under this authority."

As of March 1, 1983, veterans who had filed claims for VA compensation based on radiation totaled 3,325. Only 2,321 of the claimants exhibited any medical condition requiring medical treatment.

Twenty-nine claims attributed to atomic testing and 55 related to exposure from other sources have been allowed. None of some 388 claims attributed to having been stationed in Hiroshima or Nagasaki have been allowed, however.

Claims attributed to Agent Orange exposure now total 16,821 from 1978, when wide media attention began about the alleged effects of exposure to the herbicide. While medical care for those alleging such exposure has been allowed liberally, no claims for compensation have been allowed on the basis of exposure. Less than half of the claimants had a disability.

For both groups, VA conducts a complete physical examination. When conditions are found that could reasonably be related to service, compensation is paid in relation to the degree of disability. Among the 8,341 Agent Orange claimants who exhibited a disability, 1,300 have been awarded compensation for service-connected reasons other than Agent Orange exposure.

block of State Street and the 1600 block of Cleveland Boulevard, where some on-site industrial soil samples registered a lead content as high as 30 percent.

Lead can be inhaled or ingested by the body, with possible ill effects to blood production, kidney and brain functions. Children appear especially vulnerable to the effects of lead pollution.

State investigators are puzzled by the blood samples found to be within a range considered acceptable when compared to the high soil findings, but think the presence of iron and zinc in the air here might have played an inhibiting role in lead absorption.

"The amount of lead we found in lead (blood) samples we collected last fall was no higher than what we found in other Illinois cities," according to William Kemper, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The blood samples taken from 97 individuals living in 43 households located within two miles of the lead smeltering plant tested about the same as the samples taken from the state in 1979 and by the Illinois Association for Retarded Citizens in 1976.

Both the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) and the health department, however, were concerned about the high levels of lead found in soil near the Taracorp lead smelter.

Samples taken at intervals up to two miles from the 16th Street and Cleveland Boulevard area show lead levels decreasing to 200 parts per million.

The very high lead levels in the soil represent a risk to very young children who may play with dirt and eat the contaminated soil," according to the state health director.

"We strongly advise parents, especially those living within one mile of the smelter, not to allow children 6 years old and younger to play in dirt that is covered with grass, gravel or other ground cover or to eat outdoors," Kemper said.

Outdoor activities of older children and adults need not be restricted, he explained. Emerson School, to be closed this summer, is located within a mile of the lead smelter. Prater Junior School, to become a large elementary school next fall, is located within a mile and a half of the smelter.

According to Richard Carlson, IEPA director, agency data indicates the recorded high lead levels came from the direction of the Taracorp smelter, which makes lead sheets, shotgun pellets and other lead-related items.

Besides air, soil and blood lead levels, state collected samples of garden vegetables grown in various areas of the city. Those tests revealed more lead in vegetables grown near the smelter than in other parts of the city.

"But the small amount of lead the person would get from eating those plants represents only a fraction of the lead the U.S. Food and Drug Administration says people take in every day from a normal diet," according to a state summary of the lead findings.

Health officials, however, are advising gardeners to test for phosphorus and acid levels, which can inhibit lead ingestion by plants when properly balanced in soil.

The Madison County Extension Service, located in Edwardsville, has indicated it will help interpret garden soil tests that could be processed for about $4 through private area laboratories, according to James J. Maloney, IEPA air pollution spokesman.

Granite City drinking water test records do not show any lead contamination, but groundwater samples have proven inconclusive and more sampling is planned.

A high lead reading was taken from one well sample at a level of about 14 feet below the surface, which has health and environment officials concerned about groundwater contamination.

According to Maloney, the state is appealing to private owners of wells in the area to allow their ground water to be tested at the state level. The nearest IEPA office is located in Collinsville and may be reached by calling 345-6020.

Based on the various tests taken in the recent study, the IEPA finds the amount of lead in the air and on the ground at and around the Taracorp lead smelter unacceptable. "Part of the problem is due to past operations and part due to current activity," Carlson said.

The IEPA was already denied a recent permit renewal application submitted by Taracorp for its blast furnace. Taracorp has appealed the decision to the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

"We have asked the Illinois attorney general to review the number of environmental law violations found at these sites and to obtain legally binding agreements from the companies to clean up the operations, as well as the lead contaminations they have caused," Carlson said.

The attorney general's office subsequently issued letters on April 15 with cleanup recommendations to Taracorp Industries, St. Louis Lead Recyclers, the Tri-City Truck and Trailer Repair and Granite City First National Bank, which owns the Lead Recyclers property.

The state also has been in contact with National Lead to immediately take certain steps to reduce the amount of dust blowing off their properties. Those steps include restricting traffic on plant property, paving or treating roadways and parking lots, regularly cleaning paved areas, erecting a fence to reduce wind erosion, and planting vegetation in open dirt areas.

"There are special tests being done which should be done in a month or so, that will help pinpoint the lead sources most responsible for the lead in the air we are monitoring," Carlson said. The state also has requested an engineering study of the Taracorp facility that would be undertaken to determine what can be done to prevent lead pollution.

had pen and notepad in hand and asked, "Where?"

She explained that she did, indeed, eat without interference at other restaurants and Carey demanded to know which ones.

"Finally, after numerous questions, Miss Asher became disturbed and responded, 'It's none of your business.'"

With that, Miss Asher asked Grass to contact the sheriff's department. It did not stop Carey, who continued with statements such as "You can leave him (the dog) in the car" and "You have people with you. You don't need the dog."

When the deputy arrived, he chose to speak with Carey first, even though Miss Asher had called for assistance. While Carey and the officer talked in a private office, the reporter asked several patrons if the dog was disturbing their visit. None indicated the dog was disturbing them and some said they had seen the harness and realized that he is a guide dog.

When the deputy talked to Miss Asher, he asked her to leave at the manager's request. After she managed to convince the deputy to look at a copy of the law, he talked with Carey and came back to inform Miss Asher that she would be left alone.

Carey denied offering to pay passing truck drivers to stop the dog or kick it as they walked by, which one woman told the reporter she overheard. Carey later told the Press-Record that he believes he was misunderstood. "It's not true. I think I said, 'Watch, don't step on that dog's foot,'" he related.

Once again, Grass called authorities, this time to file a formal harassment complaint. A second deputy responded and was given the necessary information.

He, too, apparently spoke with Carey. He promised Miss Asher that she would have no more problems, since Carey was leaving the evening.

By this time, the blind woman was ready to leave. She paid her bill and headed for the car. Grass led, but stopped short of the vehicle and said, "We aren't going anywhere." Both front tires of their car had been punctured.

Carey says he absolutely did not puncture the tires. "After the first officer was called, I left. An hour later, they called me and said she (Miss Asher) had called another officer."

said, "don't bother me with it. I didn't want to be disturbed." Carey told the Press-Record later.

Another deputy answered this call, the third, and informed Grass that no one had heard anything. "Miss Asher arranged for a ride and finally left the restaurant at 10 p.m."

She was visibly shaken by the night's events, but maintained, primarily, a positive attitude.

"I am furious. I was publicly humiliated, but the deputies did the best they could," she said.

Asked why she continues to visit the restaurant, she said, "I really like the coffee here and they have the best sweet rolls. The waitresses are very nice, and it's close to my home."

Although Carey had been informed by Miss Asher, the state's attorney's office and at least two officers that he had no right to demand that she leave the restaurant, she said he never apologized to her.

"Most of the time, they request the proper identification, apologize and leave me alone. Even the manager of Robata's (in Westport) apologized and gave us a round of drinks to compensate for the embarrassment he felt we had suffered."

That wasn't embarrassing. That was normal. But this has been humiliating enough to buy me a liquor store," she adds.

Carey has a different viewpoint. "She's nothing but a troublemaker. She comes out here and causes trouble. The first time (she was asked to leave) she got into it with a customer," he contended.

He said Miss Asher tried to show documents that she was entitled to bring a guide dog into the restaurant, but "I didn't read them."

Miss Asher hopes that the experience will serve to help others in her situation. "I didn't want a blind person—with a guide dog—who is just passing through to be unnecessarily removed from a place and then have a bad idea of Granite City."

"Most places don't give me a slice of this type of trouble," she concludes.

Miller

Miller replied, "Yes, sir."

"You had not been offered a deal by the government until after they had been snookered by Tom Brimberry, had you?"

"No, sir."

Bailey then asked, "Did you know your case looked bad, and I'll quietly respond, 'It didn't look too good.'"

Challenging Miller's statements that he had called Jim Massa when IRS agents approached him during the investigation against Brimberry, When he had actually called Brimberry, Bailey asked, "You told them that you had called Jim Massa, did you not?"

"I don't recall using Jim Massa's name," Miller testified.

Bailey then asked, "Did you know that it is a crime to lie to federal agents during the course of an investigation?" and Miller answered, "I didn't at the time."

Skinner's attorney, Robert Rice, forced

Miller to admit that he had asked Skinner to sign several dividend checks because "his own handwriting was too bad."

"Your own handwriting got better in 1979 when you told Duane Skinner to stop because you didn't trust him, didn't it?"

"Yes, sir," was Miller's reply.

Rice also hinted that Maeras and Miller had agreed to testify against Skinner because they had fallen out of favor with Brimberry. "Mr. Brimberry appeared to treat Mr. Skinner more favorably," Rice stated. "You and Maeras are like Cinderella's sisters and Duane Skinner is Cinderella, isn't that right?"

Miller quietly replied, "Yes, sir."

Rice also questioned Miller about Janice Brimberry's testimony that Sally Maeras was blackmailing the Brimberys, and Miller responded, "Tom had told me that Jerry was, but he never mentioned Sally."

place, the motion states.

Greathouse was indicted Thursday by a grand jury.

Madison County Supervisor of Assessments James Barton is charged with official misconduct, bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery in the alleged scheme.

Barton allegedly accepted $1,000 from Madison landowner William Nichols to influence Greathouse's vote on a zoning request.

Records indicate that Barton says he gave $500 to Greathouse so he would vote favorably on a request from Nichols to install a bridge over a sanitary district ditch.

Greathouse said he took the money, but returned it to Barton the next day. Barton has said the $1,000 was a political contribution. Both county officials deny any wrongdoing.

I-255

productivity with completion of the link. Haynes said that board should reconsider its resolution because, in December of 1982, it designated part of the American Bottoms as an agricultural preservation district.

By supporting construction of the interstate, the board would be "telling the farmers down there that you really don't care about their farmland," Haynes said.

He told the board that federal funding set aside could not be transferred for upgrading of other highways in the area. The possibility of transferring the money was, however, a major point of disagreement during the discussion, with some board members saying they were told the funds could be diverted.

But Dale Kior, district engineer of IDOT in Fairview Heights, told the board that the money absolutely could not be diverted and would be lost to other states under a "strict provision" established by the Federal Highway Administration when the money was guaranteed for the project.

He said that IDOT had carefully considered what would happen to existing highways when I-255 was complete and came to the conclusion that Highway 157 and Route 111 would be "much safer" and there would be a decrease in congestion on (Highway) 157.

Because I-255 will have limited access, it will be much safer than existing highways, he told the board. Kior cited the 824 accidents occurring on the existing highways in the last four years as a need for improved road conditions.

As far as decreasing the farmland is concerned, Kior said that the Agricultural Preservation Act became effective "long after plans were made along the way for the establishment of I-255." The act, he added, says that if a need is proven for such construction, land acquisition must be kept to a minimum.

"We're taking only the minimal amount of property (needed) for the interstate," he assured the board. It is expected that 30 to 60 thousand vehicles will travel I-255 per day.

Some board members were not, however, convinced that I-255 is necessary or the best option for improving safety conditions.

Richard Worthen (D-Alton) was particularly concerned that the Interstate would not solve existing problems and he presented a resolution urging IDOT to upgrade the existing highways "as soon as they possibly can." That resolution was approved by the board.

Worthen said he did not believe it was appropriate for the board to go on record supporting I-255 until more discussion occurred.

"To put a highway between two other existing highways is silly. It seems to be nonsense to me," he said.

Board member Charles Burns (D-Edwardsville) H. Jack Francis (D-Alhambra) and Chairman Nelson Hagnauer (D-Granite City) urged the board to support the Interstate.

Speaking as a representative from Granite City and not as board chairman, Hagnauer said he had received few calls opposing the Interstate from constituents. Some opponents have argued that the Interstate would draw industry away from the Quad-City area, but Hagnauer said he does not believe that will happen.

"I think we have to take a look at the economy of the area, the high unemployment," he said.

The Interstate would link I-55-70 from a point between Horseshoe Lake and Collinsville to I-270 at a point between Mitchell and Edwardsville.

The 5½-mile link in question would complete the proposed loop of I-255 and I-270 around St. Louis. While other sections of the Interstate have yet to be constructed, the stretch in question has the next scheduled completion date.

Madison Business Association to have organizational meeting

Ray Edwards, of Sterling TV and Appliances, has urged, "Input by all members is urgent," he said. The meeting will conclude in time for members to open their businesses.

"This is an important meeting. We want to get the club going. It should be a part of the community," he said.

Edwards urged that all members attend the meeting which will be oriented toward redefining the objectives and goals of the organization.

Edwards said that the Madison County Board of Supervisors approved a resolution authorizing a $3 million Urban Development Action Grant from the U.S. Smith Corp., plant in Granite City.

The resolution authorizes Nelson Hagnauer, county board chairman and a representative of Granite City, to sign and submit application forms for the grant, which is to be used for renovation of machinery at the facility.

Hagnauer urged the resolution's adoption, saying it would help open the facility to create jobs.

Madison County has been identified by the Department of Housing and Urban Development as one of the counties within the nation which are considered to be significantly economically distressed.

The resolution further states that "the renovation and reopening of the A. O. Smith Facility has the potential to generate approximately 400 jobs with the significant investment in the Tri-Cities portion of the County."

The plant is supposed to reopen in mid-1984 or early 1985. The facility will produce a new front structure for 1986 Ford Motor Co. passenger cars.

Play Ball! South Round Robin Tournament begins

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Granite City North's baseball team will be looking to make it two in a row this weekend in the Ninth Annual Granite City South Invitational Round Robin Tournament.

Steelers Coach Bob Stegemeier's squad, an even 3-3 this rain-delayed season, will be looking for their second consecutive championship in the mid-April tournament. In the last four years, Stegemeier's side has won the tournament more than any other team—three times—in 1982, 1980 and 1979.

Last year, Stegemeier's scrappy bunch battered its opponents—Benet Academy, Normal University High and Granite City South—outscoring them 34-3 during the three-game series. In doing so, North's Brian Levin set a high school record in the Benet game by going five for five at the plate and Steve Tritschuh equalled a Steelers record, hitting safely in nine of 12 attempts at the plate for .750 percent.

In 1982, the Steelers also reeked havoc on the basepaths during their three-game stint, successfully stealing in 18 of 19 attempts.

In 1981 Benet Academy (Lisle), usually a participant in the tournament but absent this year, downed both Granite City Schools and Kankakee Eastridge to win the tournament.

As successful as the Steelers have been in the past, things could be tougher for the Steelers this year. Rounding out this year's tournament competition in addition to South (last year), are returning Normal University High (1-2 last year) and newcomer Niles West (Skokie). Both Normal and South are looking to avenge last year's losses to the reigning champion Steelers.

"Pitching is still our big question mark going into the tournament," Stegemeier said. "Not only do we have to worry about three games in the tournament, we have to be concerned with another game Monday. Our pitchers will have to have good control since we have so many games so close together (to successfully make it through the tournament)."

Monday, two days after the tournament, the Steelers

"Some teams see longer to get into the swing of things than others. We've played 11 games, but we're still not as far along as I think we should be."

John Modica

Warrior baseball coach

are scheduled to meet Gateway East Conference opponent Cahokia in Cahokia.

Stegemeier said right-handed pitcher Dan Whitsell has represented the Steelers well this season. And, he added, Jim Burton had a good outing against Alton, April 12, before it was rained out. Other pitchers whom the Steelers coach said are "coming along" include Sam Tate, Greg Levin and Ray Takmajan.

"Our pitchers just have to know how to pitch the ball rather than just throw the ball. We're starting to become better pitchers, though," Stegemeier concluded.

If there is one common denominator among all the teams this year, it has been poor weather and the infrequency of games played this year. Usually by tournament time, the participating teams have at least a dozen games under their belts. But this year, due to the rain-ravaged season, this year's field of competitors have averaged less than six games, or less than half as many as usual.

Those few games, the coaches admit, make it difficult to "fine tune" both a team's offense and defense.

John Modica's Warriors are 4-2 this season, while Normal and Niles West are 0-2 and 3-1 respectively as of Wednesday afternoon.

If the team with the most experience this year will have the upper hand, South should be sitting pretty. The Warriors have played 11 games this year, more than any other team in the tournament.

"Some teams need longer to get into the swing of things than others," Modica said. "We've played ten games, but we're still not as far along as I think we could be."

"I'm going out there with a wait-and-see attitude," he said. "It's possible that we could take the tournament. We've got the talent. If we go out there and play the best ball we can we'll do alright."

The Warrior helmetsman said he couldn't remember the last time South won the tournament, but, he said, he "doesn't worry about things like that," and he's hopeful his team will do better than last year when the Warriors were winless in the tournament.

For the record, the last time South won their own tournament was in 1978 when Tom Mahl pitched the Warriors to a 1-1 tie against cross-town Granite City North before darkness cancelled the contest. Despite the tie, the Warriors were declared the winners because North had already dropped two games to Niles East and Centralia.

"We're gradually improving our game," Modica said of his 1983 squad. "Both our defense and our hitting have gotten better. We're the kind of team that can't afford to make many mistakes if we expect to win."

As for pitching, Modica praised righthander Tom Newton, 1-2 this season, and Dominic Griffin, a relief pitcher who may even get a starting role.

A third participant in this year's tournament, Niles West, is a newcomer to the journey with a returning coach. West's coach, George Galla, brought a Niles East team to the tournament in 1978. East, a sister school to Niles West, has since been consolidated into the West campus.

Galla and his Indians have the best record coming into the tournament. Despite their rain-cancelled season, West has racked up three victories against some traditionally tough Chicago-suburb teams.

Those teams to have fallen to Galla's Indians include Niles North, Chicago-Shurz and Oak Park. In another contest, which was postponed due to rain, West was leading Evanston 7-4 before the postponement. The Indians only lost this year was a 3-0 defeat to Addison Trail.

"We're really looking forward to this weekend's games," Galla said. "I think we've got an above average team this year. They're hungry to play in Southern Illinois."

Leading the way on the mound this year for the Indians are two strong upperclassmen. Southpaw Pete Joseph is West's game winner this year, posting an impressive early start of 2-0.

Supporting Joseph on the mound is right hander Corey Binstock. Binstock's record is an even .500, winning one and losing one.

Without question, the most ill-prepared team in the tournament this weekend will be Normal University High.

Coach Jim Scott's Pioneers have had a disastrous season thus far in Illinois' heartland.

"You wouldn't believe how bad things have been here so far," Scott said. "We've played just two games, one of which shouldn't have even been because it was so cold."

"In addition to the two games, we've been outside for practice just two days since March 1. It's tough for pitchers and hitters to sharpen their skills when you have to practice indoors."

Normal's pitching staff consists of three starters—one senior and two juniors—all of whom are righthanders. Senior Brett Ellis and junior Bill Kauth are the Pioneers' only two pitchers to see action this season. Both are 0-1.

Normal's third pitcher, Adam Dannenberger, Scott said, will probably see action early in the second game. "It's been a tough year to date," Scott said. "We really don't even know how good we are yet. We're all excited about going south to play some good AA schools."

The Pioneers will get their chance Friday at 7 p.m. when they take on Granite City South in the second game of the tournament.

Thursday Sports Crusaders blank Warriors; Althoff leads GEC

By ROGER KRAMER
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City South baseball team probably knew what Belleville Althoff could do with the bats. If there were any doubts at all, they disappeared Wednesday.

Althoff put on a hitting clinic, put together 12 hits and toppled the Warriors 10-0 in five innings in a Gateway East Conference game at South.

"They're a tough team," South Coach John Modica said. "They do hit the ball, and they have some super people up and down the line-up."

It has been hitting that has put the Crusaders on top of the GEC standings. Althoff is 6-1 for the season and 3-0 in the GEC. One of those victories came in a 15-2 drubbing of Edwardsville at the Tigers' cozy LeClaire Field.

Althoff Coach George Martz would agree hitting is the main reason the Crusaders are on top. However, Martz believes it has taken more than hitting to put Althoff where it is now.

"Our hitting has been consistent all year, but our pitching has been more than adequate and our fielding has been good as well. We still have a long way to go yet," Martz said.

Although South's Mark Vanyo pitched two strong innings, the Althoff bats finally got to South in the third inning. The Crusaders quickly sent Vanyo out of the game and mastered South pitching for the final three innings.

The six-run third was all Althoff really needed to demoralize South. Althoff's Chris Demick walked, and John Feher hit a double to send him home. Todd Grant then reached on an error and Tony Duenas hit a double to score both Feher and Grant. Ed Keturakis added a single and Duenas and Keturakis scored on Tim Guehr's single.

Vanyo left the game for the Warriors, but the runs continued off reliever Tim Fletcher. With the infield playing in for the play at home, Bart Cason and Kevin McFarland hit singles just out of the infielders' reach. Cason's drove home two RBIs to cap the scoring.

The Crusaders added two more runs in the fourth and the fifth inning. Meanwhile, Althoff's pitching and defense allowed the Crusaders to go back to Belleville early.

South had runners at third in both the second and third innings, but McFarland's tricky pickoff move, got Althoff out of jams both times.

In the second inning, South catcher Jim Moulden walked and went to third on an error. However, McFarland caught him leaning towards home and caught Moulden in a rundown.

The other pickoff came after second baseman Darrell Elmore got a single and advanced to third on a fielders' choice. McFarland once again caught the South runner asleep on the base paths and threw to Grant at third for the pickoff.

Besides the two pickoffs, McFarland gave up only four hits and two walks in five innings of work.

"We've been getting good work out of all our pitchers. I just hope we can give them more time to pitch because the weather has really hurt us. We want the chance to see some more people in action," Martz said.

"We've got a little bit of an edge in the conference now, but we haven't played (Granite City) North yet and we still have to play South, Edwardsville and Cahokia one more time," Martz said.

While Althoff has the edge in the GEC, South is finding itself deeper in a hole in the league. The Warriors, 4-7 this season, are now 1-3 in the conference.

"There's no doubt, they can hit the ball well," Modica said. "Our pitching has to start getting a little better though."

Although the Warriors as a whole were cold, Phil Dudak, who played at third Wednesday, is still keeping up his average. Dudak, who was hitting .643 last week, was 2-for-3 at the plate against the Crusaders.

South, North, Niles West and Normal University High will play in the 9th annual South Round Robin Tournament Friday and Saturday (see related story).

Tigers come from behind to defeat Warriors 6-5

By STEVE WHITWORTH
of the Press-Record

EDWARDSVILLE — Center fielder Greg Colligan of the Edwardsville Tigers spoiled an extra-inning upset bid by Granite City South when his two-run homer gave Edwardsville a 6-5 victory over the Warriors Monday.

Colligan's blast with two out in the bottom of the eighth inning capped a last-minute Tiger rally. South had backed the Edwardsville Tigers to a tight spot when they tied the game at 3-3 in the top of the seventh and went ahead 5-3 in the top of the eighth.

The game began as a pitcher's duel between South's Tom Newton and Edwardsville's Tim Brinkmann. The first four and one-half innings were scoreless as South produced two hits and Edwardsville just one.

The Tigers tallied first in the bottom of the fifth. An RBI single by right fielder Mark Blythe and a sacrifice fly by first baseman David Lange gave the home team a 2-0 lead.

South responded with two runs in the top of the sixth. Right fielder Vince Mitt Linhart singled and left fielder John Linhart followed with a blast over the fence in right center.

"I thought I had a homer my first time up," said Linhart, who slammed a towering drive over the left field foul pole in the first inning. The umpire ruled the ball foul.

"I was just trying to make contact," he said in the bottom out. "I got a foul ball and I knew it was out as soon as I hit it."

Catcher Dave Vieth of the Tigers put his side back on top in the bottom of the sixth with an RBI single, driving in designated hitter Mike Cox.

South fought back again, however, in the top of the seventh when shortstop Randy Thurman singled home second baseman Darrell Elmore to tie the score at 3-3. Newton then held Edwardsville in the bottom of the frame to send the game into extra innings.

The Warriors pushed two runs across in the top of the eighth. Catcher Jim Moulden led off with a single. Moulden had a fine game defensively, throwing out three of the four Tiger runners who attempted to steal; but, the Warrior receiver swiped second himself and moved to third when Edwardsville misplayed a bunt by center fielder Tom Adamitis.

South then successfully ran the suicide squeeze as third baseman Mike Sikora bunted; Moulden scored and the other runners were both safe. Then, with two out, first baseman Tom Stegemeier singled home Adamitis to make the score 5-3.

Unfortunately for the Warriors, however, Edwardsville did not roll over and play dead. The Tigers clawed their way back with two outs, as Vieth singled home Cox to make the score 5-4. Colligan followed and sent Newton's first delivery over the fence in left center. It was a disappointing end to a fine effort by the South squad.

"We must be living right," exclaimed a jubilant Tom Pile, coach of the Tigers. "We're hot and everything is going our way."

Pile praised the Warriors. "They were excellent. They had timely hitting," he said. "The game had everything: defense, offense and strategy."

He described the finale, saying, "My boys asked me if they were doing at the first pitch when we were down by two in the eighth. I told them to only swing on a gut shot. Colligan took the gut shot and it paid off."

Madison hosts elite 16 tournament this weekend

Billed as the best pre-Lite Seventh Annual season softball tournament, the 16-team double-elimination tournament, the Miller 16-team tournament, has been scheduled for this weekend, April 21-24, at Madison's softball diamond located at McCambridge and Third Streets.

According to softball enthusiasts and tournament director Sam Dymas, the tournament will feature some of the best teams of Illinois, Missouri and Indiana.

Among the teams in the tournament are Benjamin's and Lord Nelson's of Granite City. Also competing are such great softball teams as Alton, Edwardsville, Schmale's Astros of St. Louis.

Action begins at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday as the Whompuscats take on the Hartford Stars. The tournament will run all weekend long, concluding on Sunday evening at 7 p.m. with the championship game.

Madison finished fifth with 50, 63, Jerseyville came in fourth with 50, and West Wood River finished fifth with 37 points.

The best individual performance by a Trojan was turned in by John Lewis when he won the medal in the high jump with a leap of 6-1. The team took second in the event, losing by just one inch to Jerseyville. Madison's total was 16-11, while Jerseyville jumps totaled 17 feet. Teammate Avery Blockton jumped 5-4 and Brian Pata cleared 5-6 to round out the Trojan total.

Lewis, who had jumped 6-8 last Saturday, day at Belleville East, didn't jump as well as he is capable of, according to Madison's coach, Charles Steptoe.

"John was getting tired from being in other events by the time he got to jump," Steptoe said. Lewis also competed in the long jump and triple jump.

Steptoe added, "John did well at the beginning, but he wasn't as aggressive when it got cold and dark. He's capable of doing better. We could have used a little more leverage to help the team take first. But, he jumped just well enough to win it."

Lewis also turned in a jump of 19-4 in the long jump, leading the Trojans to a fourth-place finish in that event. Teammates Elmer Collins and Reginald Banks jumped 18-2 and 16-1, respectively.

However, Lewis scratched in the triple jump and the Trojans took sixth. Collins and Leroy Latham combined for a total of 75-3.

Madison lost points when they were disqualified in the 800-meter relay. They had finished second to Carlville, but they made an illegal exchange of the baton.

Madison's freshmen and sophomores took fifth in the mile relay with a time of 4:07.5. The varsity squad did not place in the event.

The varsity squad fared better in the 400-meter relay, taking fifth place. A. C. Ware, Derrick Jackson, George Leonard and Shawn Brown combined for a time of 36.9.

Leonard and Banks also turned in good individual performances in the 330-low hurdles, with times of :41.9 and :42.9, respectively.

Steptoe was not satisfied with his team's overall showing, however. "We didn't do very well," he said. "We had mental errors, like that bad exchange in the 800. But we hope to have learned from them and to be better the next time out."

Granite City's Greco is a hit with the Cougars

By AL BARNES
for the Press-Record

Thomas John Greco, one of the very best of a long line of outstanding baseball players spawned by Granite City, is midway through his fourth and final year as a mainstay on the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville diamond squad.

His sensational .427 batting average is one of the main reasons the Cougars are zooming along at a hefty 15-8 pace and are ranked No. 17 in the NCAA's national division 2 ratings.

The silent and taciturn Greco, who is without a doubt the quietest player on the Cougar squad of 20, is glad now that, four years ago, he changed his mind about the college he wanted to attend.

Southeast Missouri State of Cape Girardeau had won out in a long list of colleges who wished to recruit Greco, both for baseball, but probably more for his promise as a linebacker and a fullback in football.

As an incoming college freshman four years ago, he even then weighed approximately the same solid 210 pounds that he now carries on his 6'2" frame. The University of Illinois was really high on him, too, among many big schools.

But, due to the interest of the Cape's baseball coach, the veteran Joe Uhis, Southeast Missouri won the early nod. However, after three or four days in the early September hot weather down there in Swampscott Missouri, young Greco opted to return home to Granite City and enrollment at SIUE.

"I had heard a lot about the Cougars' new head coach, Bo Collins, and I just knew that I would be happier there," Greco explained. Collins took over from the veteran Roy E. Lee.

Everyone connected with the baseball program at SIUE has to be more than happy with Tom's decision. He, however, hastens to add an additional reason for coming "back home."

"Every since I started out playing baseball under Coach Myron Merz in the age group seven-to-eight back there in the Mitchell boys league I've loved baseball. The five or six years he coached me I simply fell in love with baseball. He was great for all of us. I think him, now."

Now, Coach Bob Collins' eyes light up when Greco's name is mentioned. Does he have a future in professional baseball, Collins was asked: "If the scouts do themselves a favor and catch more than just one game in which he plays, they will have to be impressed. And, offer cash inducements to him to sign a contract. He can't miss... he's fast... he's now third on the eight starters (8-3) in stolen bases behind Tim Gamble's 18 and George Vogel's 16-1... his .427 hitting average is ten points better than our runner-up Kurt Martin and so far, he's fielded first base with an error in handling almost 176 chances."

One of the most respected judges of baseball talent, the late and legendary Branch Rickey, was the first in the history of the game to spell out what it took to become a great baseball player.

"Give me a young man with a good body, fast and a love of the game, plus a good mind and a love of God, and we can make a baseball player out of him." Mister Rickey, of course, was the man who built the St. Louis Cardinals dynasty and then went on to do the same for the Dodgers, first at Brooklyn and then at Los Angeles.

That is the prescription given this reporter in Mr. Rickey's office out at the old Sportsman's Park around 1948. And, no one who knows Greco, will doubt for a moment that he wasn't describing him.

Says Greco, who is anxious not to leave out anyone who has helped him develop his baseball career: "Don't forget to mention Coach Edwards at Praction, Bob Kehoe who coached me my freshman year at North, and, of course, Coach Stegemeier my final three years at Granite City North."

Of course, with all the nods to those who have helped him in his baseball career, he goes far beyond the usual nod to his parents and siblings.

"Mom and Dad was always behind me 100 percent... and my three sisters are hardly less so."

In Greco's senior year on the Steelers, they won both the regional and sectional and then lost in the first game at (Peoria) in the state tournament, 5-4, to Oak Forest, which went on to win it all.

Baseball players, like most athletes, have almost total recall when it comes to remembering their statistics. What did you hit in your junior and senior years at North?

"I was .375 as a junior and .454 as a senior," came his instant reply.

Funny thing, though, Greco is almost as proud of the Cougars' and his defensive skills this season. "This SIUE team is the best on the defense in the four years I've played here," explains Greco. The 23-game statistics appear to bear him out: the Cougars have committed only 19 misuses. I think that the pitchers have an additional seven or eight... and that kind of defense has helped us in winning at least eight or nine of our 15 victories," he says flatly.

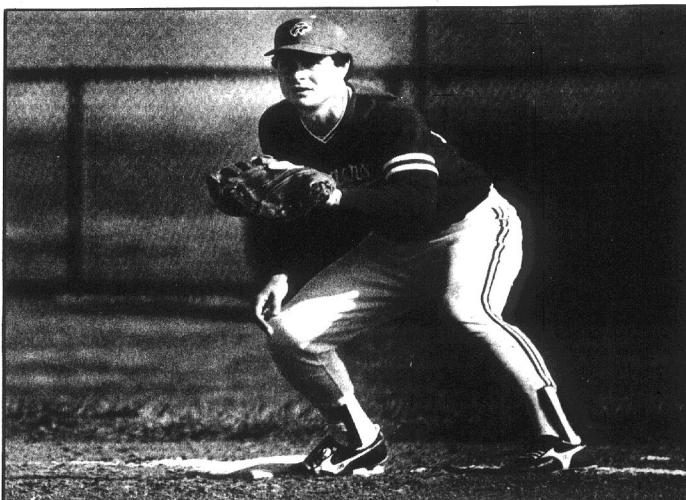

The opposition, the SIUE stats disclose, committed 50 errors over that same stretch of games. Those same stats gives another hint of his terrific batting eye: his 15 walks is second to Kurt Gibson (catcher) who has drawn 17 walks.

The Globe-Democrat picked him at second base on their All-Metro Team his senior year. He prefers first base.

He was asked his opinion on his chances of being signed to a pro contract and then going on to make it in the majors.

Without a sign of false modesty or of braggadocio, he answered: "I really believe that I have a shot at both: being signed and of advancing to the majors."

If he doesn't, however, he knows what he wants to do with his life: "I would like to teach physical education and coach."

Whitsell pitches GCN Steelers to third victory

By ROGER KRAMER
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Only five things have been constant for Granite City North's baseball team this season. Rain, cold, hitting, fielding and Dan Whitsell.

Rain and cold have combined to cancel seven of North's 13 scheduled games. North has had strong hitting and fielding all season, but the only time North has won is when Whitsell was at the mound.

Although Whitsell finally gave up an earned run Monday, the Steelers more than made up for it. North clubbed Cahokia 11-1 in five innings in a Gateway East Conference game.

"Whitsell has been doing an outstanding job for us," North Coach Bob Stegemeier said. "We also seem to hit the ball when he's pitching."

Whitsell, who was involved in all three North victories this season, is 2-0 for the season. Whitsell pitched the first four innings against New Lenox Providence and did not get the victory and he pitched North's 10-0 win over Wood River.

Whitsell, who pitched a one-hitter against the Oilers, put in a two-hit effort against the Comanches. While Whitsell chilled Cahokia's offense, North was putting everything together.

For instance in the first inning, catcher Daren DePew hit a single and Dave Shiek walked to open the inning. DePew scored on Terry Rujawitz's fielder's choice because Cahokia catcher Brian Bethea was late with the tag. Shiek scored on a throwing error by third baseman Mark Westbrook, and Rujawitz scored on Bethea's error.

North added three runs in the second. DePew led off with a walk and Shiek had a single. Rujawitz's single brought home both DePew and Shiek, and Rujawitz scored on Rod Hessler's double.

Stan Sillas, Cahokia's starting pitcher, ended Whitsell's scoreless streak. Sillas walked, stole second and third and scored on Westbrook's double.

However, the Comanches were held hitless after that.

Even when Danny Sackett reached on shortstop Benny Nolan's error, North was able to get out of trouble quickly. Sackett made the turn to second, and DePew alertly got to the ball and threw it to Hessler, who tagged Sackett.

"Even though we had shortstop Brian Levin out with an injury, we still had good defense. Even when we did make an error, we made an alert play to get the runner out," Stegemeier said.

The course of events set up the game-ending fifth inning. Kevin Patterson opened with a single, and Sergio Cortez and Nolan reached on errors. Keith Coakley hit a sacrifice fly and DePew reached on a fielder's choice.

Shiek and Rujawitz had RBI singles and Steve Trittschun hit a RBI double to end the game before Cahokia picked up the second out of the inning.

"We're starting to come around at the plate and hitting the ball well," Stegemeier said. "I thought everyone did a good job in the field, including Benny, who had to come in from the outfield. It seems we can do it all when Danny's pitching."

While Stegemeier could be pleased with North's hitting, fielding and pitching, Cahokia Coach Chet Barker was lamenting his team's defense, which committed five errors in the game.

"We just don't seem to be a cold weather team," Barker said. "I hope we get better when it gets warmer because our fielding has really hurt us a lot. We're making way too many errors; it seems like we make six to eight physical or mental errors a game."

The Comanches are a young team, and errors can be expected from them, but Barker is starting to become concerned since his team has yet to win a conference game.

"We just have to get better on defense," Barker said.

Illinois DOC passes boat horsepower limitations

SPRINGFIELD — A new standardized state-wide policy governing horsepower limitations for boats became effective April 15, according to Director David Kenney, Illinois Department of Conservation.

The general rule states that only trolling motors are allowed on lakes up to 60 acres in size and a ten-horsepower limit on lakes from 61 acres to 500 acres. For lakes larger than 500 acres, the DOC reserves the right to establish various speed ceilings dependent on the nature of the specific lake.

A 25-horsepower ceiling will be enacted at several large lakes. This popular size engine, Kenney explained, appeared to provide an ideal compromise by allowing adequate power for sportsmen without being powerful enough to tow water-skiers and create wakes detrimental to the lake's physical characteristics.

The policy was formulated on the recommendation of a special Task Force which studied past practices at individual sites, and attempted to formulate standards consistent with public safety, conservation, and recreational needs.

"One of the top priorities was to develop a regulation consistent for waterfowl hunters and for sport fishermen at the same lakes, and a practical standard that would be enforceable by our law enforcement officers," Kenney stated.

"We believe that the new regulations offer additional flexibility to the public," he said. "This will allow sportsmen to use more powerful motors on larger lakes, at least in specific cases where the nature of the lake and surrounding shore will not be damaged by such activity."

GCS, GCN matchups this afternoon

This afternoon, weather permitting, Granite City South and its sister school, Granite City North, will meet on both the tennis courts and the softball diamond.

Granite City South and coach Rich Harmon will play host North's John Van Buskirk and the Steeler squad.

The Warriors are even at 3-3 this season while the Steelers are 2-4. Yesterday, the Steelers managed a 4-2 team victory over Gateway East rival Cahokia. This afternoon's action, at the Grand Street courts, begins at 4 p.m. at the Grand Street tennis courts.

Also at 4 p.m., but at Granite City North, the Steelers 0-1 this season will host Warrior coach Pat Yates and the South softball team, 0-3 on the season.

Ski vacations: Sometimes you get more than you bargain for NOTE: Upon hearing the news within this column, my colleagues here at the Press-Record have since renamed my little column "Sports on the Limp." Nice people aren't they?

When I'm old and gray, sitting in my rocking chair collecting my memories, there will be things from my life that I remember because I chose to and other things will be long forgotten for similar reasons. But one thing I'm sure that I'll remember for some time will be my vacation of 1983.

Planning this year's vacation sounded like something from a screenplay of a big movie. "A full year in the making...spanning half a continent...You get the picture."

Some college buddies and I had planned a reunion of sorts, in the great West. It was going to be the time of our lives. Needless to say, we were the best of friends—real tight.

The plans for the vacation had been finalized in December when each was home for Christmas.

My vacation permitted only a week, but I managed to swing an additional weekend—nine full days of R & R. Or so I hoped.

It had all the makings of a Lowenbrau Beer television commercial.

My friends, one of whom manages a string of Domino Pizza franchises in Colorado and Montana, and the other is a mining engineer in Boise, Idaho, had less time off. But that didn't matter. We were all going to rendezvous in Bozeman, Montana.

WHERE? Bozeman, Montana. The land the American Indians called "The Land of the Big Sky." Montana State University is located there and it's also just 50 miles from Yellowstone National Park.

The scenario was set. Bozeman was the site. I arrived via Frontier Airlines in Bozeman on Thursday, March 18, 12:15 p.m. Chuck, the one who manages the pizza franchises at the airport to meet me.

It was my first trip to Montana. Its inherent, unadulterated beauty was immediately evident. It has the best things Colorado has—the mountains, the forests and the wildlife—but it also lacked the bad things. In particular, the development that has taken Colorado by storm during the last 20 years.

I savored Montana's beauty momentarily before going into Bozeman proper. There would be time to enjoy nature later. First, and foremost, we had some catching up to do.

Naturally, upon my arrival we had to check out all the establishments a college town has to offer.

Six hours and nine establishments later, we had done all the catching up that could be done.

Twelve and a half hours after I landed (off the plane), Lou, the third and final member of the trio arrived at our cabin. Still bright eyed following his eight-hour drive from Boise, Lou bolstered the reunion into the early morning.

The next morning revealed that an additional six inches of snow had fallen. The same foul weather that had incessantly battered the California coastline neatly and unthreateningly deposited a shroud of snow in the Gallatin Canyon.

Choosing to take advantage of what Mother Nature had so timely blanketed the canyon with, we took to the ski slopes of Big Sky, one of Montana's most prestigious ski resorts.

Darn! If only we had waited. Waited until the latter portion of the week to take to the slopes. But all that is hindsight. And, as they say, hindsight is always 20-20.

Anyway, we took to the slopes. Now, I don't profess to be a fantastic skier. And, I'm certainly not as good as Chuck and Lou. After all they both live in the West and ski at least once a week. They've even been known to ski at night during a full moon, which really isn't as dangerous as it sounds.

But, I have pushed a few ski poles in my days.

We took one run at Big Sky's lower slopes, which I add were quite crowded, before we decided to do some helicopter skiing.

Yep. Helicopter skiing. Point one: The lower slopes were crowded. Point two: Because of point one, the lift lines were enormously long.

Point three: A lift pass was $18 all day. The helicopter pass was a mere $2 more, $20.

It made all the sense in the world. Now, let me explain helicopter skiing.

In helicopter skiing, a party of three or more (its mandatory) are taken to the summit of the mountain (in this case it was Lone Mountain) in a helicopter. You're dropped off, literally. The helicopter, this one was a Huey, (the kind used in Viet Nam) hovers about three feet above the mountain while you jump out.

Then you were on your own, or almost. A member of the United State Ski Patrol accompanies each party on these summit adventures.

The trip down was everything I thought it would be. Fast. Exciting. Uninhibited.

We knew helicopter skiing was common on Lone Mountain, but you couldn't help but feel that perhaps you might be the first one to choose this particular run.

Above the timber line, we were all pretty cautious—slaloming from side to side so as not to pick up too much speed.

It took us probably two hours (although it seemed much shorter) before we entered the timber.

Things would have been fine if I would have practiced the kind of care in the timber as I did above it. But I didn't.

Once in the timber we began looking for wildlife. Deer, elk, mountain goats and even Big Horn Sheep roamed Lone Mountain.

Chuck was the first to spot two elk. The were in the open until they saw us then they dashed for cover. From that point on the skiing became less important than seeing wildlife. And that's where I made my mistake.

It was now about 11 a.m., we had been in the timber for perhaps 45 minutes when I saw something off to my left in the woods. The very second I glanced into the woods I hit a mogul, a mound of snow-blown packed snow, and lost control.

I should have just gone down. But instead I tried to recover. Just when I thought I had, I hit something else.

I came out of my bindings neatly enough, but my left knee absorbed the entire shock of the fall.

Nothing. Absolutely nothing. I have ever experienced felt as bad as my knee did after I fell. The instant my knee touched, I felt a snap that shot up my leg. I knew I had really done it this time.

The pain was excruciating. The mere weight of my ski boot was too much stress on my knee.

After I punctuated my fall with a few descriptive words, Chuck, Lou and the member of the ski patrol (bless his soul) came to my rescue.

Hours that seemed like minutes while we were skiing down, now seemed like days.

In actuality, it probably took the helicopter no more than 15 minutes to bring the toboggan to where we were on the slope. But it seemed much longer.

Why didn't I just ride down in the helicopter, you ask? That was my question too. Evidently, the slope of the mountain prevented the helicopter from getting close enough to us to do that. So, for the next two and a half hours, I rode a toboggan to the lodge where I eventually had my knee examined.

There wasn't a staff doctor at the lodge which mandated a trip into Bozeman 40 miles away.

Evidently, the doctors in Montana believe in telling it like it is.

"I've been a doctor at this hospital for 27 years and I've never seen a knee give as much as yours does." That was Dr. Cunningham's remarks after giving my knee various stress tests.

"As I see it," I recall him saying, "you've got two alternatives. We can schedule you for surgery here or you can get the first flight out of here and have it done back home."

My mouth must've dropped open. I thought about saying, "I want a second opinion," but nothing came out.

My vacation was ruined.

"As far as I can see you've torn the $174 + tax ligaments here below the knee, as well as the 3/4% ligaments on the inside of the knee. The real clincher, and I've never seen this one before, is that you've torn the 8 7/8% ligament behind the knee."

The fine doctor wasn't swearing, he was just assessing the damage in medical terms.

So to put an end to this, I got the first plane I could out of Bozeman, which was Tuesday, and flew home for the surgery.

One week after the accident, Dr. Gary Farley, of the St. Louis Sports Medicine Clinic, did the honors.

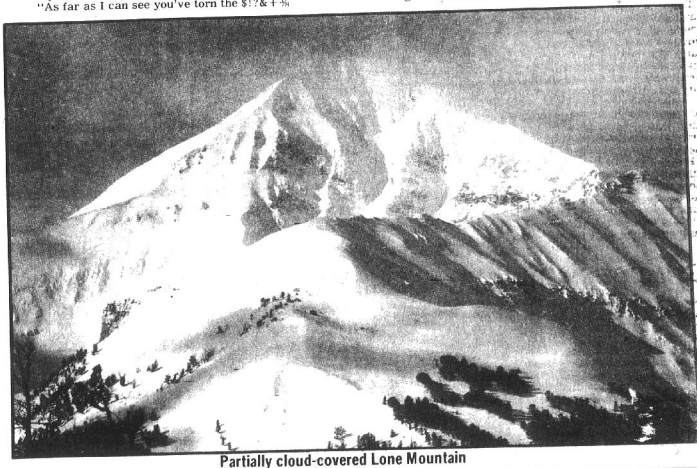

"We'll have you back out there on the slopes by next year," he said. That was just fine with me, after all we had already planned next year's vacation with one revision: We're going skiing in the latter part of the week.

Just one more thing. Congratulations are in order to Granite City South's football coach Jerry McKeach and his wife. They are the proud parents of a new baby boy, Patrick Gerald McKeach.

The little guy checked in at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis at 7 pounds 12 ounces last week. The proud father has already, yep you guessed it, bought the little guy a football. He'll probably know what a 42 size is before he knows the alphabet.

Congratulations again.

North students' art exhibited at BAC show

Two pieces of artwork done by Granite City High School North students of Bob Moske's art classes have received recognition at the Belleville Area College High School Invitational Art Show.

Dave Smith, a senior at North, and Lisa Willardt, a junior, were each recognized for their respective art pieces. Smith, who received a tuition scholarship to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville as a result of the competition, was a merit award recipient for his pencil drawing. Smith is now a student in Moske's Art VIII class.

Miss Willardt received an honorable mention for her entry, a piece she completed during Moske's summer art class.

Three other students, Darin Davis, Tina Webb and Shelley Poloski, also entered art pieces into competition. Their projects, in addition to those of Smith and Miss Willardt, are on display at BAC through Monday, April 18.

An elated Moske said he was "extremely happy" with his students' efforts in this their first exhibition at BAC.

Moske said he was particularly happy for Smith because it means he will be able to further his art at a college whereas without the scholarship he probably wouldn't have been afforded the opportunity.

Davis, Miss Webb and Miss Poloski are senior art students at North.

TERRELL RECEIVES INSURANCE AWARD

The 89-year-old agency is one of the world's largest life insurance companies with assets more than $2.6 billion and more than $17.7 billion of insurance in force.

New recycling center aids state program

Governor James R. Thompson has declared April 22 through 29 as recycling week in Illinois and is asking all residents of the state to follow the lead of the Coalition for Recycling by pitching in during the campaign and throughout the year.

"Recycling is everybody's business. This declaration is a reminder to all that conserving Illinois' resources not only enhances the beauty of our state, but can be turned into a profitable venture," Thompson said.

The coalition is working closely with the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) to distribute statewide literature explaining and promoting recycling.

The idea of bringing the coalition together with state government was spurred by a DCCA-sponsored workshop last August. More than 200 representatives of local governments and industries met in Chicago to learn more about recycling innovations.

"Ten percent of the total number of local recycling centers in the United States are located in Illinois," the governor noted. "Right now, our biggest concern is that the supply of recyclable materials exceeds the demand. We hope that creation of a well-established network of local recycling centers can make these products more attractive."

Locally, Container Recovery Corp. has set up a new aluminum recycling site at Nameoki Village Shopping Center, 3401 Nameoki

Road, which is open Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. until noon and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The site offers recyclers a chance to win reserved seat tickets to a home Cardinal baseball game of their choice. Those who return cans to the unit are eligible to sign up for a weekly drawing for tickets. The first drawings will be the week of May 1 and will continue weekly through the end of August.

Labor census here this week

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census are conducting a survey of employment in this area this week. Marvin L. Postma, director of the bureau's regional office in Kansas City, has announced.

In addition to the usual questions on current employment, the April survey will include others concerning country of birth and immigration.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically-designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on the results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

In February, the survey showed that of 110.6 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 99.1 million were employed and the unemployment rate was 10.4 percent, the same as January. The nation's overall unemployment rate, including the Armed Forces, was 10.2 percent in both January and February.

Information supplied by those participating in the survey is confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

VEHICLE RECOVERED

A 1976 four-wheel drive vehicle stolen from the Granite City Steel blast furnace parking lot last week was recovered later that day by sheriff deputies, who had it towed to Mitchell. The owner is Ronald Yates, 2936 Washington Ave.

Gardenaires donate funds

At the April meeting of the Gardenaires Garden Club, which was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Kohl, the club voted to send a contribution to the National Arbor Day Foundation, in recognition of Arbor Day in Illinois, to be observed April 29th.

The Arbor Day Foundation is a non-profit organization, and annually provides seedling trees to youth groups throughout the United States, and is also active in promoting programs to encourage the public to plant trees in their communities. Headquarters of the foundation is located in Nebraska City, Neb., at Arbor Lodge, the former home of J. Sterling Morton, who founded the national Arbor Day observance.

Mrs. Richard Kerch, the newly elected president, presided at the meeting. She announced that Mrs. Roy Hornmann will resume the duties of chairman of the Mini-Garden Information Center, and Mrs. William Long will serve as horticulture chairman for the next year.

Mrs. Kerch reminded members of the District V Workshop would be held in Granite City on May 11 at the Harold Brown Recreation Center. The Garden Study Club will be the hostess club for this event.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the president introduced the program chairman, Mrs. Kohl. She presented a program entitled "The Basics of Growing Houseplants." The program served as an introduction to the coming years program theme which will be "Houseplants, Ways to Grow, Love, and Care for Them."

The next regular meeting of the club will be held on May 12, at the home of Mrs. Mary Kristian.

Attending were Mesdames: John Farrell, Robert Hintz, Roy Hornmann, C. E. Eads, Wm. Long, Leo Schank, Al Malotiki, and Mary Kristian.

Sandra Laster served as honor attendant and Carolyn Burns was the bridesmaid. Lora Fonville, a niece of the groom, and Bill Jacobs, the groom's cousin, were the flower girl and ring bearer.

The groom chose his cousin, John Luehmann as best man. Larry Aleksandrian, a brother of the bride, was the groomsmen and seating the guests were Billy Aleksandrian, another brother of the bride, and Bob Carter, the groom's brother-in-law.

New laws would make owning a pickup truck more convenient

Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar has announced the introduction of legislation implementing his pickup truck program, which includes eliminating one of two annual safety inspections and creating multi-year, vanity and handicapped plates for the state's 828,000 pickup owners.

"This four-bill package of pickup legislation will enable my office to further reduce the amount of government regulation on pickup owners without threatening traffic safety," Edgar said. "Other provisions permit us to expand our services to pickup owners by issuing the convenient, cost-saving multi-year plates, handicapped plates and popular vanity plates."

Edgar said the four bills containing the pickup truck program would:

- Reduce from two to one the number of inspections for trucks with "B" license plates, saving pickup owners time and inspection fees. (Semi-annual inspections would continue to be required for all larger trucks.) This bill is sponsored by Senator Frank Watson (R-Greenview) and Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville).

- Establish multi-year plates for the state's 828,000 pickup trucks and approximately 275,000 small trailers, including recreation trailers used for boating and camping. Owners of such vehicles would display multi-year plates beginning July 1, 1984. This bill also would establish vanity license plates for trucks, as is currently done for automobiles.

- Would establish handicapped plates for pickup trucks and vans.
- Would waive fourth quarter fees for all new trucks registered after June 1 each year.

"These proposed changes will make life a little easier for the state's pickup truck owners, while permitting my office to streamline the small truck registration program and save the state money," Edgar said.

"More and more motorists are buying pickups and using them as a second family car. They deserve the convenience of a single vehicle inspection each year, multi-year plates, and the opportunity to display handicapped or vanity plates," Edgar said.

"Today, if you register a new vehicle after June 1, you must pay for the fourth quarter registration fee, sometimes amounting to several hundred dollars for larger trucks, for less than one month's driving, since trucks must be re-registered June 30 each year."

"In addition, the multi-year program for trucks will save the state an estimated $5.5 million over the next five years in materials and mailing costs," Edgar said, "while freeing truck owners from having to replace their plates every year."

Edgar said that while 23 states, including Illinois, currently have some type of vehicle inspection requirement, there is a trend toward either reducing or eliminating inspection programs.

"In 1979, 32 states required vehicle inspections. However, during the last three years, nine states have abolished them," Edgar said. "For example, in Pennsylvania, which has one of the oldest truck inspection programs in the country, the number of annual inspections was reduced from two to one."

"These states share our belief that reducing the number of inspections will have minimal impact on traffic safety."

Edgar also said the automobile vanity plate program has generated $3.1 million for the $2,000 sets of plates purchased since its inception in 1980.

Public water groups praised

Mitchell and Pontoon Beach water districts are among 1,325 public drinking water supplies being commended for their performance during 1982 by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA).

Ira M. Markwood, manager, Division of Public Water Supplies, IEPA, said, "The growing size of this list reflects the increasing professionalism of Illinois' public water supply operators — and the success of efforts by municipalities and the IEPA in providing and maintaining safe drinking water."

To receive commendation, a public water supply must have submitted all required water samples on schedule and have not had any violations of health related standards during 1982.

These criteria are defined in detail by the Illinois Pollution Control Board's rules and regulations for public water supplies and the interim primary drinking water regulations of the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

Other factors, such as condition of the facility or aesthetic quality, are not considered.

Markwood added, "Publishing this list is part of our way of recognizing those who have spent much time and effort toward making possible something most of us take for granted — safe drinking water."

Acquires local apartments

Midwest Multi-Family Management, Inc., recently acquired eight rental apartment properties, including buildings at Gaslight Walk and Arlington Heights.

At Gaslight Walk in Pontoon Beach, the company acquired 26 buildings with 104 units, and at Arlington Heights, it purchased 18 buildings with 72 units.

Kathy Smith, senior resident manager, said, "Negotiations to obtain the rental properties were started last year, with the apartment buildings being acquired recently."

Mrs. Smith said that the company is refurbishing the apartments as they are vacated. New carpeting, paint, wall paper, light fixtures and floorings are being installed in various apartments, she said.

Rental rates for those residents presently living in the apartments will be negotiable as leases run out, she added.

A newsletter is published each month for the residents and Mrs. Smith said the company plans to continue its community-related work with the residents.

The company also offers 24-hour maintenance service for emergencies, including fire, flood, tornado and heat or air conditioning failure, she said.

The Madison County office for Midwest Multi-Family Management, Inc., is in Bethalto. The company is a member of a nationwide apartment property management organization. The other properties involved in the acquisition include University Gardens, Wood River Gardens and Lafayette Square in the Wood River area, Chateau Townhomes (formerly Chateau des Fleurs) and Kingston Estates in the Bethalto area and Hamlet in Hamlet. More than 600 units in one, two- and three-bedroom apartments and two-bedroom townhomes were involved in the acquisition.

Interested persons may call Mrs. Smith at 1-377-3000, the Bethalto office.

Lotto now at $2.5 million

A prize more than double the largest ever awarded in the Illinois State Lottery could be collected if a single winner matches all six numbers chosen Saturday night, April 23.

A grand prize of $2.5 million is guaranteed to a single winner. If two players win the grand prize, each get more than $1 million.

Supt. Michael J. Jones said the grand prize pool is so large because there has been no grand prize winner since March 26. Therefore, 80 percent of the grand prize pools for both succeeding weeks have been "rolled over" and added to the present prize pool.

Although there were no grand prize winners April 16, more than 7,200 lotto players received a total of more than $400,000.

Ten players matched five of the six winning numbers and the alternate number, and each won $6,650. There were 159 second prize recipients — who matched five of the winning numbers — and each got $853.

Third prizes of $28 each went to 7,066 players, who each matched four of the six numbers.

Mission Saturation Event for Methodist Churches

The Pre-Mission Saturation Rally will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 28, at the Troy United Methodist Church, Troy, Ill., featuring Dr. Robert V. Marble, United Methodist Missionary, as guest speaker.

Dr. Marble will share information relating to the work of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church and will tell some of his own experiences as well as some projected goals of the missionary programs for the future.

He served as a United Methodist missionary in India for more than 35 years. From 1966 to 1981, Dr. Marble directed the work of the United Methodist Committee on Relief in India. Working closely with governmental and other agencies the work has involved vast programs of disaster relief and developmental programs, including financing of rural and urban slum rehabilitation, well drilling, rigs, manufacturing, agricultural development and extension. Also programs for the rehabilitation of lepers and other physically and mentally handicapped.

Prior to that assignment, Dr. Marble worked among the Gond tribes in the jungles of Central India. They were in charge of the mission school, the boy's hostel and farm and were involved with Christian congregations in the area.

Born in Conway, Ark., Dr. Marble grew up in Neosho, Mo. He received a bachelor of arts degree from Central College in Fayette, Mo., and a bachelor of divinity degree from Yale Divinity School. He was awarded a doctor of divinity degree by Central College in 1966.

Before entering missionary service, Dr. Marble was an associate pastor of a United Methodist Church in Joliet, Mo.

His wife, Martha, also graduated from Central College. She was born in Salisbury, Mo., and earned a master of arts degree from Scripps College. Before becoming a missionary, she was a deaconess doing Christian education work among coal mining people in Kentucky for two years.

The East St. Louis District of the United Methodist Church will have a Mission Saturation Event Nov. 5 through the 10th. At that time, missionaries and missionary personnel will be speaking in all United Methodist Churches in the area.

The purpose of the fall event is to inform, challenge and create a more personal involvement of the local laity with the mission work of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church, according to the announcement.

Trees being removed around Cahokia Mounds

By KEITH E. SCHILDROTH

Trees are being removed from the Cahokia Mounds Historic Site to keep archeological finds intact and to help visitors view the mounds better, according to Ed Keating, a landscaping architect for the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Keating said the removal of trees is "selective rather than wholesale."

"When you have trees growing in an archeological area, the roots can possibly damage the archeology," Keating said. "We are moving the trees to save the archeology and to give the mounds a better interpretation for people."

The trees presently being removed from the base of Monks and Moorehead mounds are cottonwood and maple. Bill Iseninger, a site interpreter specialist at Cahokia Mounds, said people will be able to see the mounds better without the trees.

"People driving up to the mounds have a tough time seeing it because the trees block their view," Iseninger said. "You will also be able to see the mounds from the highway (I-55/70)."

Iseninger said some trees will be left around the base of both mounds for scale purposes.

Trees also were removed from the site five years ago. "We just want to give people a good view of the mounds," Iseninger said.

PTA convention concludes Friday

The 81st annual convention of the Illinois PTA is underway at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, and will continue through Friday. An anticipated 1200 delegates are meeting to discuss issues facing public education in Illinois and to develop leadership to continue the PTA commitment to children and youth.

This year's Convention theme, "People Together Accomplish," expresses the strong belief in PTA as a unified parent organization can work to insure the future and the welfare of children through programs in parent education, awareness, scholarship, legislation, cultural arts, and wherever else a need arises.

The convention agenda includes workshops and clinics dealing with basic topics and current issues. There are business sessions, legislation sessions, resolutions and elections, as well as guests, speakers, and opportunities to share information and experiences with PTA people from all over Illinois.

Two keynote addresses are given at the convention are Ann Lynch, national PTA vice president, and Shari Lewis, puppeteer and author of the "Do-It-Better People" books. In addition, Dr. Larry Chase, author of "The Other Side of the Report Card," and Dr. Lincoln Peccaut, founder of the Institute for Motivational Development, are participating in a face-off on the subject of goal-setting and motivation for the child. Dr. Dan Kiley, noted child psychologist, is leading this symposium.

Friday morning participants need not register. All business sessions are contained within the hotel for the convenience of the participants.

Eye injuries are soaring on courts

By GERALDINE BOWER
Extension Adviser

A racquetball player fires a shot that skips from the front wall to the side wall to the back wall.

But then she makes the mistake of turning around to look at her opponent's next move. Her opponent aims poorly and fires a return shot directly into her eye.

The game is called on account of an emergency room visit.

With the flourish of interest in racket sports of all sorts, eye injuries also have been on the rise. In fact, racket sports have become the leading cause of sports eye injuries for men and the leading cause of all eye injuries for working-age women.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, in 1981 a total of 4,500 racket players in the U.S. had to visit emergency rooms because of eye injuries. A Harvard ophthalmologist estimates that by including injuries not treated in emergency rooms, the figure would be between 20,000 and 70,000.

The two most injury-prone racket sports are racquetball and squash. The major reasons for this are the close confines of the court, the ricocheting of balls and the high speed of play.

Beginners can hit a racquetball at speeds near 70 miles per hour, and advanced players can hit a ball up to 127 miles per hour. Also, a racquetball and squash ball are an ideal size to do damage to the eye.

In contrast, tennis has a wider court and moves slower. As for badminton, eye injuries are more rare, but they tend to be severe because of the shuttlecock's missile-shape.

The remedy for racket-sport injuries is simple — buy goggles. Goggles, which are inexpensive, are readily available from sports shops and opticians.

But the key is for eye protectors to gain greater acceptance. Some physical education facilities have begun to require eye protectors for racket players. But at most places, the majority of players ignore these simple, eye-saving devices.

Regular eye glasses, even those with impact-resistant glass or plastic lenses, are not adequate protection on the court. Regular glasses can even cause more severe injuries when glass or plastic shatters and strikes the eye.

In addition, eye protectors without lenses are not as effective as guards that do have lenses. There have been cases of racquetballs squeezing through the openings in lensless guards.

The American Society of Testing and Materials presently is voting on a standard for racket-sport eye protectors.

However, with the simple precaution of goggles, you can keep your eye on the ball without facing the dangerous consequences of having the ball on your eye.

MOTORCYCLIST IS HURT ON JOHNSON

David E. Cooper, 20, of 2017 Clark Ave., was injured during the weekend when the motorcycle he was riding and an auto, operated by Gary L. Ridenour, 32, of 2905 National Ave., collided on Johnson Road. Both drivers were making right turns into Terrace Lane when the mishap occurred, reports said.

Fine art of city planning is fine-tuned at university

By BRAD WEISENSTEIN

Parks, homes and businesses don't just happen; someone plans where they go. The city planner is responsible for laying out a city, fitting homes, businesses and open space together much like a puzzle. But if the city is small and its budget even smaller, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville may help it fit its people and places better.

The graduate planning program offered by the department of earth sciences, geography and planning helps small communities develop city plans as part of the students' education.

The program director, Donald Strohmeyer, said students gain practical experience solving urban space problems, while the cities gain help they otherwise couldn't afford.

We recently did a downtown redevelopment plan for West Frankfort. We did a park project for Chester. And we regularly work with PTAs and church groups," he said.

A city planner decides land use. He decides what is important in considering changes in the city, according to Strohmeyer.

If a new shopping center were going to be built, a planner would consider whether the farmland being taken out of production for the parking lot, or the historic farmhouse destroyed for a store, was more valuable than the money and jobs generated by the center.

The planner deals with decisions about how well people can live with a change. He recommends a decision to the city government for action.

DISPLAY 'CLASSICS' AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

In an effort to disprove Mark Twain's definition of a classic as "a book which people praise and don't read," the Granite City Public Library has organized a classics display. More than 60 new editions of some of the world's literary masterpieces will be on display at the Main Library, 2001 Delmar, for several months, beginning Saturday.

All books will be available for check-out so that everyone will have the opportunity to sample famous novels such as Tolstoy's "War and Peace," Melville's "Moby Dick," George Eliot's "Middlemarch" and many others.

DAMAGE VEHICLES

Vandals damaged autos owned by Donald Hunt, 30 Nassau St., and Ruth Bischoff, 3204 Erin Drive, last week. Both vehicles were parked outside their respective homes. The windshield on Hunt's auto was missing and the outside mirror and door were damaged on the Bischoff auto.

ties in with this decision process in two ways. The first is by the service provided to cities which can't afford a planner or consulting firm.

The second is by educating planners. SIUE has one of the few planning programs in Illinois. It is the only program recognized in this area by the American Planning Association (APA), a professional organization of city planners.

One hundred-and-eleven people have been graduated from SIUE with a master's degree in city and regional planning. The graduates are working locally in cities such as Edwardsville and Centralia. They also are working at the state level.

Nationally, they are with the federal Housing and Urban Development program and many private companies. Strohmeyer said all the graduates are employed and in positions he considers successful. "Those 111 are also educated planners who make responsible decisions," he said.

A city without a planner may have decisions made considering politics only, Strohmeyer said. A planner addresses all facets; he considers aesthetics, historical importance, economics, environmental impact and the general considerations which allow people to live with a change.

The SIUE program helps make the difference between educated decisions and possibly short-sighted ones.

The program at SIUE is one of the graduate programs which operates in the "black." Tuition from the students enrolled is paying all of the program costs, the director said.

Strohmeyer said this is an accomplishment, considering that the closest competitive program at a state university in Illinois costs twice as much to operate.

It is also an accomplishment because many graduate programs at SIUE must exist on revenues from programs which don't cost as much to operate.

Planning isn't something people often think about in their city. But planning decides the layout of their lives.

The next time someone remarks about the smelting plant next to their house or the beautiful park next to the shopping center, the person will have either the lack of or the presence of a planner to thank.

COURSE ON HOT AIR BALLOONING

The Office of Continuing Education at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is offering non-credit ground course on hot air ballooning.

The class meets each Tuesday from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. in Room 3411 of Peck Classroom Building. Sessions began Tuesday, April 19 and run through Tuesday, May 10.

Students in the course will learn about ballooning equipment and federal ballooning regulations and will be involved in inflating a balloon. The course will be taught by Jim Cook, a commercial pilot and Federal Aviation Administration certified instructor.

Fee for the class is $20. Those interested may register through the mail or at a class session.

For more information, or to register, interested persons may call the Office of Continuing Education at 1-692-3210.
